BRITISH AWAIT GERMAN DASH

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, March 8.—Matters of vast importance with regard to the British campaign and the anticipated dash with Germany's warships in the North Sea were discussed today at a meeting of the war council. Lord Fisher formerly first sea lord, attended the session. It was the first time he has been called into a formal meeting of the council, but it was stated that the invitation sent him antedated the proposal made by Winston Spencer Churchill in the House of Commons yesterday that the famous sea warrior be given a high post in the government.

Churchill's warning that the Kaiser's fleet will make a dash, is commented on at length by the London papers today. Those which have opposed the present government declare the warning must be heeded and that nothing be left undone to assure victory for England.

Government organs, on the contrary, assail Churchill bitterly, suggesting that he wishes to return to the cabinet and that he is willing to wreck the government in order to satisfy his personal ambitions.

They flatly deny Churchill's intimations that the admiralty under the leadership of Arthur J. Balfour, has neglected to take the necessary precautions against the German fleet.

LESSONS IN ORCHARD PRUNING

Series of Field Demonstrations to be Held in Ulster County by Manager Hook of the County Farm Bureau.

A number of members of the Ulster County Farm Bureau Association see the need of a greater interest in better fruit trees in their communities. These members have requested assistance and co-operation from the farm bureau in holding pruning demonstrations at their orchards. Their purpose in making this request is to provide their neighbors and friends with the opportunity to secure information regarding pruning, or to stimulate in the community a greater interest in the production of better fruit.

These requests have been granted and pruning demonstrations have been arranged in co-operation with the following persons:

Thursday, March 9, 2 p. m., Leslie Herring, Ulster Park.
Friday, March 10, 9 a. m., John Herring, Ulster Park, (near St. Remy).
Saturday, March 11, 9 a. m., George Sherwood, Wallkill.
Saturday, March 11, 2 p. m., Miss M. A. Gerow, Gardiner.
Thursday, March 16, 9:30 a. m., C. B. Moulle, Accord.
Thursday, March 16, 1:30 p. m., D. B. Humphrey, Nanapanoch.
Thursday, March 16, 4 p. m., Benson & Eskin, Nanapanoch.
Friday, March 17, 9:30 a. m., C. F. Snyder, Mt. Marion.
Friday, March 17, 1:30 p. m., A. T. Hove, Shultis Corners.
Friday, March 17, 4 p. m., Isaac Smith, Saugerties, (Route 3).
Saturday, March 18, 2 p. m., Jacob Verrier, Olive Bridge.

In these demonstrations a summary of the methods of pruning used by the best fruit growers in Ulster county and those recommended by the State College and Experiment Station will be presented. The main stress will be laid on the proper pruning of old and young apple trees. It will be shown what limbs should be removed so as to admit the necessary amount of light to the trees and the fruit and yet avoid removing so much wood as to shock or to produce throw it out of bearing or to produce sun scald and undue development of water sprouts.

The treatment of apple cankers and other bark diseases will be demonstrated and discussed. Also upon request a demonstration will be given in left grafting, pointing out where scions should be secured, how they should be cut, inserted, and wanted to make the graft successful.

Upon request, the manager will show how to prune pears, peaches, plums, grapes, if the kinds of trees and vines can be secured.

As far as possible, bring your saws in order that you may secure practical information.

"Silvers" Is Dead.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 8.—"Silvers," the clown who for years made millions laugh by his imitable on-man pantomime of a baseball game, today was found dead from gas in a theatrical boarding house. He was in real life, Frank Oakley. Discovery by the landlady that the cracks of the doors and windows were stuffed with rags and paper led the police to conclude that it was a case of suicide.

Lenten Services Begin.

Lenten services at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer begin this evening at 7:45 when service will be held. Every Thursday evening devotionals will be held. During the week services will be held every evening. The adult confirmation class will meet Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Those desiring to attend this class are requested to be present next Friday evening.

NEW FOREST FIRE PREVENTION BILL

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, March 8.—State wide forest fire prevention is provided in a bill introduced concurrently in the senate and assembly today by Senator Charles W. Walton and Assemblyman H. Edward Machold, chairman of the conservation committee of both houses. The bill, which was drawn in collaboration with the conservation commission, is a revision and codification of the entire conservation law relating to lands, forests and public parks, and reduces this cumbersome law from about 75 unrelated sections to thirty-six, with a corresponding improvement in the clarity and directness of its provisions.

PRESBYTERIAN MEN DINE.

Get Together Meeting to Plan for Every Member Canvass.

The complimentary dinner tendered the men of the Roundout Presbyterian Church by the ladies, which was given on Tuesday evening in the chapel, was a success and was largely attended. The address of the evening was delivered by the Rev. F. E. Stockwell of Newburgh, and at the close plans for the every member canvass were perfected and a social hour enjoyed.

The dinner was one of the best ever prepared by the ladies of the church, who are noted for serving fine meals. The tables were arranged in the form of a square and were artistically decorated with carnations and candles while the chapel was handsomely decorated with the national colors. The place cards were works of art. The menu served included tomato soup, veal pie and mashed potatoes, peas, jelly, asparagus salad and ice cream and cake. The caterer was Mrs. Daly and the dinner was served by a committee of ladies from the Ladies Aid Society of the church in charge of Miss Katherine Van Keuren, the president, assisted by Miss Sarah Huber, Mrs. William C. Kingman, Mrs. I. W. Scott, Mrs. J. A. Huhne, Mrs. Harry G. Smith, Mrs. Hugh McCullough, Miss Mary Baker, Mrs. Charles G. Ellis and Mrs. C. R. O'Connor.

At the close the Rev. Dr. C. G. Ellis, pastor of the church, presided as toastmaster and brief addresses were made by A. S. Hammond and William C. Kingman, who were followed by the Rev. Dr. Stockwell, who delivered the principal address of the evening. Dr. Stockwell is an eloquent speaker and his remarks were greatly enjoyed.

The affair was in the nature of a get-together meeting of the men of the church to arrange plans for the every member canvass which will be made on Sunday afternoon. Of late years the church finances have been made on a sound basis by adopting this system of raising funds for carrying on the work of the church. By this method every member of the church is seen and is asked to give a certain sum each Sunday. This system has been adopted with great success by Protestant churches all over the country.

The meeting was followed by a social hour.

Among those present were the Rev. Dr. C. G. Ellis, the Rev. R. E. Stockwell, Rev. Mr. Danglemond, Edgar Dempsey, Horace Maxon, George A. Canfield, Charles R. Dixon, Harold Van Deusen, Fred Van Deusen, Eugene MacConnell, Robert Watson, Jr., Donald Rodie, D. Presley Byers, James Draffen, John E. Rowland, Dr. Arthur Cragin, A. J. Marks, William I. Hutton, Remsen DuBois, I. W. Scott, Clarence Rowland, Harry G. Smith, M. F. Wygant, Charles Terwilliger, James E. Purdy, A. S. Hammond, Dr. C. H. Bishop, William C. Kingman, James B. Murdoch, Alex. Rodie, James E. Canfield, Adolph Bell, Wilson LeFevre, Fred Meeker, Charles Beeres, Robert Thompson, James G. Van Keuren, Dr. C. B. Cragin, Frank R. Powley, Hugh McCullough, Charles E. Bishop, Charles R. O'Connor, Dr. J. A. Huhne, Leslie Stevens, Sanford Van Deusen, Harold Hasbrouck, Guilford Hasbrouck, Abram R. Coutant, Coroner E. A. Kelly, Herbert P. Stickles, Henry C. Connelly, Professor Arthur O. Bridgman, Vernon J. Faulkner, John F. Rowland, Dr. C. D. Carter, John E. Weber, George G. Linkletter, William Doherty, Walter Van Steenburg, Kenneth Canfield and Hildreth Lazarte.

Pinochle Tournament Standing.

Another series of games in the great pinochle tournament being held by the three local Odd Fellow Lodges were played on Tuesday evening in the rooms of C. S. Clay Lodge and there was a large number of pinochle fiends present to watch the play. Captain Whitbeck's team of huskies from Kosciusko Lodge as a result of the games played still retain a tight hold on first place while Aretas Lodge made a gallant effort to crawl out of their cellar position and crept up one game on Clay Lodge. The games tonight will be played at Kosciusko Lodge and the leaders in the tournament expect to increase their lead by playing on their own grounds.

As the tournament is fast drawing to a close interest has become intense and the sole topic of conversation among Odd Fellows when they meet is the proper and best way to play out a hand. The standing in the tournament follows:

Kosciusko Lodge	27	15
C. S. Clay Lodge	26	25

INDUSTRIAL WORK IN HIGH SCHOOL

Kingston is waking up to the realization of the fact that the industrial departments of its new high school are doing a wonderful, and much needed work. It is not always that the merchants and industrial managers of a city's enterprises are so willing to co-operate with the school departments, and throw open their plants and factories for the inspection, and teaching of the pupils of the high school, who are taking industrial courses.

Within the last few months many of Kingston's biggest concerns have extended invitations to the shop department to take its classes through their establishments, and as Mr. Service, the efficient instructor of this department, is firmly convinced concerning the great value of these trips, he has been glad of the chance to give his classes these practical illustrations of their work.

Trip to Palen's.

Only last Wednesday, due to the kindness of Mr. Humphrey, the manager of the Palen plant, a group of boys were shown through the entire establishment. The foreman, Mr. Whitaker, who took the class through, clearly and carefully demonstrated the practical workings of all machines. The plant was at the time rushed with work, but the courtesy extended to the group from the school goes to show how interested Kingston business men are in this new phase of school work. Many of the boys were astonished to find out that there was such a variety of wood working is done, and many fellows remarked upon the similarity of the methods employed in the factory, and those applied in the school shop which cannot help but show the practical side of the school shop work. In fact the main aim in this department is to meet as far as possible the conditions of the outside world, and in order to do this the assistance of Kingstonians is much needed, and appreciated.

Trip to Road Machinery Co.

At an earlier date another section of the industrial students went to the Universal Road Machinery Co. where under the guidance of Mr. Leighton, the general manager, they were carefully shown through, and the operation of certain machines was demonstrated to them. The students noticed the very efficient shop system employed in the plant, and that this was so thorough a success that Mr. Service hopes to be able to take another group of students through in the near future.

To Canfield Supply Company.

Monday afternoon the students were invited to go through the Canfield Supply Company's building on the Strand, and a more educational trip could hardly have been planned. From this trip the boys ascertained among other things that they are using the same theory, and as far as school conditions will allow the same practice as is used in these large plants.

The sheet metal works especially interested the boys where under the guidance of the foreman they were shown the workings of the different machines, the use of patterns, and in general the manufacturing of sheet metal products.

Their large pipe threading machine held the attention of the boys for about an hour, while it was being explained, and demonstrated. The agricultural implements, and gas engines came in for their share of interest, and the students asked so many questions that concern was felt for the man who answered them all.

Mr. Service, the instructor, who has charge of this department, was formerly connected with the Trenton high school in New Jersey which high school was the prime mover in putting industrial training into the secondary schools, and Kingston is fortunate in having him to launch this most essential phase of high school work in this city. It is his idea in taking these trips to give the boys an understanding of what they have in their own home town, and after these visits the students often remark that they did not know that Kingston had a concern such as they had just visited. He also appreciates very greatly the interest shown by the industrial people of the city, and he hopes the people will become better acquainted with the work so that they will understand what this department is trying to do, and that they may see what is being accomplished.

Students' Opinions Of It.

The following statements of the students themselves will no doubt show how much good the co-operation of Kingston business men is doing in this work:

"The trip taken by me as a student in the shop classes of K. H. S. was both pleasurable and profitable. The business-like atmosphere which seemed to be present in all the departments made me realize more fully the value of the discipline and the methods as practiced in our shop. Not only this but the application of the drawings which we are learning in school appeared to me in a truer light."

"I saw for the first time the working of a stone crusher and a trip hammer, and learned the wide use of mechanical drawing, the improved method of threading and cutting pipe, together with the use of patterns."

"I saw problems worked out concerning which I have been puzzled in physics classes. It gave one a

The Sampson is 315 feet long and has a breadth of 29 feet, 10 inches, and a depth of 13 feet, 9 inches. Her speed is expected to be not less than 29½ nautical miles per hour. The builders expect to make delivery to the government in April next, or about seven months in advance of the contract date.

practical idea of them as well as the theory.

The time is past when the high school was a mere sanctuary of classical knowledge. In all the live cities today there are as many classes for the teaching of mechanical and industrial vocations as there are for the teaching of classics.

Tuesday the local high school had the pleasure of listening to a talk on industrial work by the Registrar of Mechanics Institute of Rochester, who among other things spoke of a new plan in use by many students of the institute that combined the theory and the practice at the same time. Two students going to the institute enter into a sort of partnership whereby one attends school one week while the other works in some one of the Rochester shops, and the second week their positions are reversed. The same studies are repeated in the college the second week so that as a result of this plan the students are given an opportunity of learning whether or not they are really going to care for this kind of work as a life calling, and at the same time the advantage from the mercenary standpoint is so great that many are thus enabled to get this training who otherwise could not stand the expense.

SIMPLICITY AND NERVE.

Won the Way for a Correspondent to See Forbidden Things.

"Roadside Glimpses of the Great War," by Arthur Sweetser, a press bureau manager in Boston who sailed for Europe at the outbreak of the war, is a delightfully intimate and informal chronicle of what one American saw and heard in France and Belgium at the time the German advance on Paris reached high tide. Sweetser's experiences go far toward refuting the "German atrocities" charges so generally circulated in the opening months of the war. A prisoner by turns of the Germans and the French, going into forbidden places by the exercise of sheer audacity and ignorance; ignoring red tape and getting where those who availed themselves of red tape did not succeed in getting, the author has an interesting "eye-witness" narrative to tell and tells it well. He was where things happened and where the ordinary correspondent never got while things were happening. His story would be unbelievably true if it were not so simply and directly told that the very manner of telling vouches for its truth. Published by the Mac Millan Co., New York; price $1.25.

S. & K. in Middletown.

Harvey C. Sammons and Andrew Keefe, who formerly conducted the S. & K. Lunch, now the Opera Lunch, on Fair street, have opened a lunch room and restaurant at No. 54 North street, Middletown, under the name of the S. & K. Lunch. Their establishment in Middletown is finished with tile throughout, and is furnished with mahogany tables with vitrolite tops. It has a seating capacity of fifty. Connected with the lunch is an up-to-date bakery where all pastries, etc., is prepared. The lunch room was opened on February 26 and has been doing a good business since.

Boys Shawangunk Hall.

Shawangunk Hall, better known as the Van Buren farm, situated near Gardiner, was bought this week by S. E. Roehrs of Madison, N. J., from A. E. Tillson. This farm was purchased last November by Mr. Tillson from its former proprietor, Augustus H. Van Buren.

PATRIOTIC MEETING ON MARCH 17

In this period of stress in national affairs nothing could be more appropriate than an enthusiastic patriotic mass meeting, and the local camp of the Patriotic Sons of America have made plans whereby patriotic exercises will be held in the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church on the evening of March 17, to which the public is invited.

The camp has engaged a corps of speakers who are well qualified to deliver addresses on the subject of patriotism. Among them will be Chaplain H. P. Silver of the West Point Military Academy, who has delivered two of the baccalaureate sermons to high school graduating classes in Kingston; Admiral Francis J. Higginson, a personal friend of Chaplain Silver; H. Willard Griffiths, corporation counsel of Hempstead, L. I.; Monroe Terwilliger, of Goshen, N. Y., and Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., who will preside at the meeting.

The committee in charge of the meeting feel especially fortunate in securing Chaplain Silver because of the many speaking engagements which he fills throughout the country. Graduates from the local high schools who have had the good fortune to hear his sermons were deeply impressed by his helpful words and have not forgotten the valuable advice given by him upon the occasion of their launching forth into the world.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend this meeting and all are asked to join the spirit of the occasion. A special invitation is given to all civic and fraternal organizations in the city and the Civil War veterans, 32 of whom were recently taken into the membership of the local camp as honorary members, will be given a place of honor at the exercises.

An attractive musical program is being arranged. The complete details of the evening's program will be announced later.

THE MYERS BROTHERS.

A Texas Tribute to Three Noted Natives of Kingston.

A recent issue of The Baptist Standard, published at Dallas, Texas, contains a highly eulogistic article by the Rev. William Thomas Tardy of that state regarding the Rev. Dr. Johnston Myers, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church of Chicago, who is a son of Mrs. Martha and the late Abram Myers of No. 19 Downs street. "It does seem," says the Rev. Mr. Tardy, "that highly successful managerial preachers are as much born to the purple as the reigning prince of any royal house; and, too, it appears that many men born in village or country are from the first destined for the city. Though of rural birth, they are quickly called to urban activities. All this is beyond us, though we see it every day. As is said in a recent novel: 'He was a typical New Yorker, though born on a farm on the prairies of Iowa.' Even so, Dr. Myers is a full-bred city man, though born in Kingston, New York, in 1833. In this he is like his brother, Dr. Cortland Myers, who won fame in the Baptist Temple at Brooklyn, and is now scaling the heights as pastor of Tremont Temple, Boston. While in Chicago, a year and a half ago, I found still another brother, assisting in the work of Immanuel Church. So, it is rather a family of gifted men who tread the asphalt, and who have in their metropolitan milieu."

Mr. Tardy concludes his sketch by a reference to the daily breakfast served in the basement of Immanuel Temple to hungry men and the support which that movement receives from wealthy men and women of all denominations.

Miss Ougheltree's New Position.

Miss Cornelia M. Ougheltree of No. 29 Van Buren street, for a year and a half agent for the Ulster County Branch of the State Charities Aid Association, left Kingston this morning for Genesee, Livingston county, where she will become a social worker for the charity department of the county superintendent of the poor. Miss Ougheltree, who is a Vassar College graduate, was the first Ulster county agent of the state association, and assumed her duties in January, 1914. Until her resignation in June, 1915, because of ill health, she had entire supervision of the county branch and her resignation was the cause of much regret on the part of the members of the association.

NEW LOCAL CHORUS TO BEGIN REHEARSING

The Y. M. C. A. Glee Club wishes to announce that rehearsals for the large chorus will begin next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. As this will be a mixed chorus of female and male voices, anyone who has a voice is invited to join the organization. However, as time is short before the concert will be given, anyone who will be unable to attend a reasonable number of rehearsals is requested not to join, as poor attendance at rehearsals seriously interferes with the work.

The foundation of this organization is not laid with the intention of conflicting with any other local society, but it will work in harmony with any society that is worthy.

The concert will be given some time during the latter part of May, which will allow only a short time for rehearsing. It was planned to have Sig. Martelli at the concert, but as he leaves the United States May 11 it will be impossible to have him. However, other arrangements for the appearance of another artist of equal note are under way, and developments will be announced later.

The organization will be under the direction of Floyd H. Vogt, who is present conductor of the Y. M. C. A. Glee Club. The program will consist of the better class of music. No oratorio will be given. Rehearsals will be held in the Y. M. C. A. banquet rooms on the second floor of the building, and will be held every Tuesday evening. The Glee Club has changed its rehearsal night from Tuesday to Monday evening. All members are requested to be present at next week's rehearsal. This chorus is organized with intention to bring together all vocalists of the community and develop the desire of our residents for the better class of music. The membership will be extended townwide and anyone who will enjoy the work is earnestly requested to join the chorus. There will be no membership fee.

FATAL EXPLOSION IN CHEMICAL PLANT

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 8.—One man was killed, and six others injured by an explosion at the Niagara Electric-Chemical Company plant at Buffalo Avenue and 26th street at 10:25 o'clock last night. Fire followed the explosion, completely destroying the storage and shipping rooms. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

The cause of the explosion is not definitely known, but it is believed to have been caused by a foreign substance coming in contact with sodium peroxide.

The dead man is Peter Pkowarski, 29 years old, of 2,511 East Falls street. He was burned beyond recognition. His identity was learned by a company check found in clothing on the body. The man was dead when found. An official statement just given out accounts for all men who were in the building.

The blaze is still burning, firemen being unable to use water because of the minor explosions which followed. The fire is eating its way toward three large chemical tanks and further destruction is feared.

HOWARD'S TAX SCHEME.

The Judge Has a Plan For Equalizing Cost of Government.

Judge Wesley O. Howard of Troy was one of the principal speakers at the annual dinner of the Rensselaer board of trade at Rensselaer Tuesday night.

In his address, Judge Howard advocated progressive taxation for the relief of the poor of the state. "By such system," he said, "men of accumulated wealth would bear the greater burden of the state's expense, while the man with mortgaged property would be given a chance to pay his obligations and at the same time co-operate within his means."

"The magnates who own little real estate, but control millions of dollars on paper, pay comparatively small taxes, while the poor man who pays $500 down on a $1,500 home has to pay taxation on the full value of his property."

Pinochle Tournament Standing.

Another series of games in the great pinochle tournament being held by the three local Odd Fellow Lodges were played on Tuesday evening in the rooms of C. S. Clay Lodge and there was a large number of pinochle fiends present to watch the play. Captain Whitbeck's team of huskies from Kosciusko Lodge as a result of the games played still retain a tight hold on first place while Aretas Lodge made a gallant effort to crawl out of the cellar position and crept up one game on Clay Lodge. The games tonight will be played at Kosciusko Lodge rooms and the leaders in the tournament expect to increase their lead by playing on their own grounds. As the tournament is fast drawing to a close interest has become intense and the sole topic of conversation among Odd Fellows when they meet is the proper and best way to play out a hand. The standing in the tournament follows:

INDUSTRIAL WORK IN HIGH SCHOOL

Kingston is waking up to the realization of the fact that the industrial departments of its new high school are doing a wonderful, and much needed work. It is not all ways that the merchants and industrial managers of a city's enterprises are so willing to co-operate with the school departments, and throw open their plants and factories for the inspection, and teaching of the pupils of the high school, who are taking industrial courses.

Within the last few months many of Kingston's biggest concerns have extended invitations to the shop department to take its classes through their establishments, and as Mr. Service, the efficient instructor of this department, is firmly convinced concerning the great value of these trips, he has been glad of the chance to give his classes these practical illustrations of their work.

Trip to Palen's.

Only last Wednesday, due to the kindness of Mr. Humphrey, the manager of the Palen plant, a group of boys were shown through the entire establishment. The foreman, Mr. Whittaker, who took the class through, clearly and carefully, demonstrated the practical workings of all machines. The plant was at the time rushed with work, but the courtesy extended to the group from the school goes to show how interested Kingston business men are in this new phase of school work. Many of the boys were astonished to find out that there was such a variety of wood working in done, and many fellows remarked upon the similarity of the methods employed in the factory, and those applied in the school shop which cannot help but show the practical side of the school shop work. In fact the main aim in this department is to meet as far as possible the conditions of the outside world, and in order to do this the assistance of Kingstonians is much needed, and appreciated.

Trip to Road Machinery Co.

At an earlier date another section of the industrial students went to the Universal Road Machinery Co. where under the guidance of Mr. Leighton, the general manager, they were carefully shown through, and the operation of certain machines was demonstrated to them. The students noticed the very efficient shop system employed in the plant, and the trip was so thorough a success that Mr. Service hopes to be able to take another group of students through in the near future.

To Canfield Supply Company.

Monday afternoon the students were invited to go through the Canfield Supply Company's building on the Strand, and a more educational trip could hardly have been planned. From this trip the boys ascertained among other things that they are using the same theory, and as far as school conditions will allow, the same practice as is used in these large plants.

The sheet metal works especially interested the boys where under the guidance of the foreman they were shown the workings of the different machines, the use of patterns, and in general the manufacturing of sheet metal products.

Their large pipe threading machine held the attention of the boys for about an hour, while it was being explained, and demonstrated. The agricultural implements, and gas engines came in for their share of interest, and the students asked so many questions that concern was felt for the man who answered them all.

Mr. Service, the instructor, who has charge of this department, was formerly connected with the Trenton high school in New Jersey which high school was the prime mover in putting industrial training into the secondary schools, and Kingston is fortunate in having him to launch this most essential phase of high school work in this city. It is his idea in taking these trips, to give the boys an understanding of what they have in their own home town, and after these visits the students often remark that they did not know that Kingston had a concern such as they had just visited. He also appreciates very greatly the interest shown by the industrial people of the city, and he hopes the people will become better acquainted with the work so that they will understand what this department is trying to do, and that they may see what is being accomplished.

Students' Opinions Of It.

The following statements of the students themselves will no doubt show how much good the co-operation of Kingston business men is doing in this work:

"The trip taken by me as a student in the shop classes of K. H. S. was both pleasurable and profitable. The business-like atmosphere which seemed to be present in all the departments made me realize more fully the value of the discipline and the methods as practiced in our shop. Not only this but the application of the drawings which we are learning in school appeared to me in a truer light."

"I saw for the first time the working of a stone crusher and a trip hammer, and learned the wide use of mechanical drawing, the improved method of threading and cutting pipe, together with the use of patterns."

"I saw problems worked out concerning which I have been puzzled in physics classes. It gave me a practical idea of them as well as the theory."

Speech to Students.

The time is past when the high school was a mere sanctuary of classical knowledge. In all the live cities today there are as many classes for the teaching of mechanical and industrial vocations as there are for the teaching of classics.

Tuesday the local high school had the pleasure of listening to a talk on industrial work by the Registrar of Mechanics Institute of Rochester, who among other things spoke of a new plan in use by many students of the institute that combined the theory and the practice at the same time. Two students going to the institute enter into a sort of partnership whereby one attends school one week while the other works in some one of the Rochester shops, and the second week their positions are reversed. The same studies are repeated in the college the second week so that as a result of this plan the students are given an opportunity of learning whether or not they are really going to care for this kind of work as a life calling, and at the same time the advantage from the mercenary standpoint is so great that many are thus enabled to get this training who otherwise could not stand the expense.

SIMPLICITY AND NERVE.

Won the Way for a Correspondent to See Forbidden Things.

"Roadside Glimpses of the Great War," by Arthur Sweetser, a press bureau manager in Boston who sailed for Europe at the outbreak of the war, is a delightfully intimate and informal chronicle of what one American saw and heard in France and Belgium at the time the German advance on Paris reached high tide. Avowedly anti-German, Mr. Sweetser's experiences go far toward refuting the "German atrocities" charges so generally circulated in the opening months of the war. A prisoner by turns of the Germans and the French, going into forbidden places by the exercise of sheer audacity and ignorance; ignoring red tape and getting where those who availed themselves of red tape did not succeed in getting, the author has an interesting "eye-witness" narrative to tell and tells it well. He was where things happened and where the ordinary correspondent never got while things were happening. His story would be unbelievable were it not so simply and directly told that the very manner of telling vouches for its truth. Published by the Mac Millan Co., New York; price $1.25.

S. & K. in Middletown.

Harvey C. Sammons and Andrew Keefe, who formerly conducted the S. & K. Lunch, now the Opera Lunch, on Fair street, have opened a lunch room and restaurant at No. 54 North street, Middletown, under the name of the S. & K. Lunch. Their establishment in Middletown is finished with tile throughout, and is furnished with mahogany tables with vitrolite tops. It has a seating capacity of fifty. Connected with the lunch is an up-to-date bakery where all pastry, etc., is prepared. The lunch room was opened on February 26 and has been doing a good business since.

Shawangunk Hall, better known as the Van Buren farm, situated near Gardiner, was bought this week by W. E. Roehrs of Madison, N. J., from H. A. Tillson. This farm was purchased last November by Mr. Tillson from its former proprietor, Augustus H. Van Buren.

PATRIOTIC MEETING ON MARCH 17

In this period of stress in national affairs nothing could be more appropriate than an enthusiastic patriotic mass meeting, and the local camp of the Patriotic Sons of America have made plans whereby patriotic exercises will be held in the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church on the evening of March 17, to which the public is invited.

The camp has engaged a corps of speakers who are well qualified to deliver addresses on the subject of patriotism. Among them will be Chaplain H. P. Silver of the West Point Military Academy, who has delivered two of the baccalaureate sermons to high school graduating classes in Kingston; Admiral Francis J. Higginson, a personal friend of Chaplain Silver; H. Willard Griffiths, corporation counsel of Hempstead, L. I.; Monroe Terwilliger, of Goshen, N. Y.; and Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., who will preside at the meeting.

The committee in charge of the meeting feel especially fortunate in securing Chaplain Silver because of the many speaking engagements which he fills throughout the country. Graduates from the local high schools who have had the good fortune to hear his sermons were deeply impressed by his helpful words and have not forgotten the valuable advice given by him upon the occasion of their launching forth into the world.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend this meeting and all are asked to join the spirit of the occasion. A special invitation is given to all civic and fraternal organizations in the city and the Civil War veterans, 32 of whom were recently taken into the membership of the local camp as honorary members, will be given a place of honor at the exercises.

An attractive musical program is being arranged. The complete details of the evening's program will be announced later.

THE MYERS BROTHERS.

A Texas Tribute to Three Noted Natives of Kingston.

A recent issue of The Baptist Standard, published at Dallas, Texas, contains a highly eulogistic article by the Rev. William Thomas Tardy of that state regarding the Rev. Dr. Johnston Myers, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church of Chicago, who is a son of Mrs. Martha and the late Abram Myers of No. 19 Downs street. "It does seem," says the Rev. Mr. Tardy, "that highly successful managerial preachers are as much born to the purple as the reigning prince of any royal house; and, too, it appears that many men born in village or country are from the first destined for the city. Though of rural birth, they are quickly called to urban activities. All this is beyond us, though we see it every day. As is said in a recent novel: 'He was a typical New Yorker, though born on a farm on the prairies of Iowa.' Even so, Dr. Myers is a full-bred city man, though born in Kingston, New York, in 1859. In this he is like his brother, Dr. Cortland Myers, who won fame in the Baptist Temple at Brooklyn, and is now scaling the heights as pastor of Tremont Temple, Boston. While in Chicago, a year and a half ago, I found still another brother, assisting in the work of Immanuel Church. So, it is rather a family of gifted men who tread the asphalt, and who have in them metropolitan mettle."

Mr. Tardy concludes his sketch by a reference to the daily breakfast served in the basement of Immanuel Temple to hungry men and the support which that movement receives from wealthy men and women of all denominations.

Miss Ougheltree's New Position.

Miss Cornelia M. Ougheltree of No. 29 Van Buren street, for a year and a half agent for the Ulster County Branch of the State Charities Aid Association, left Kingston this morning for Genesee, Livingston county, where she will become a social worker for the charity department of the county superintendent of the poor. Miss Ougheltree, who is a Vassar College graduate, was the first Ulster county agent of the state association, and assumed her duties in January, 1914. Until her resignation in June, 1915, because of ill health, she had entire supervision of the county branch and her resignation was the cause of much regret on the part of the members of the association.

NEW LOCAL CHORUS TO BEGIN REHEARSING

The Y. M. C. A. Glee Club wishes to announce that rehearsals for the large chorus will begin next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. As this will be a mixed chorus of female and male voices, anyone who has a voice is invited to join the organization. However, as time is short before the concert will be given, anyone who will be unable to attend a reasonable number of rehearsals is requested not to join, as poor attendance at rehearsals seriously interferes with the work.

The foundation of this organization is not laid with the intention of conflicting with any other local society, but it will work in harmony with any society that is worthy.

The concert will be given some time during the later part of May, which will allow only a short time for rehearsing. It was planned to have Sig. Martinelli at the concert, but as he leaves the United States May 11 it will be impossible to have him. However, other arrangements for the appearance of another artist of equal note are under way, and developments will be announced later.

The organization will be under the direction of Floyd H. Vogt, who is present conductor of the Y. M. C. A. Glee Club. The program will consist of the better class of music. No oratorio will be given.

Rehearsals will be held in the Y. M. C. A. banquet rooms on the second floor of the building, and will be held every Tuesday evening. The Glee Club has changed its rehearsal night from Tuesday to Monday evening. All members are requested to be present at next week's rehearsal. This chorus is organized with intention to bring together all vocalists of the community and develop the desire of our residents for the better class of music. The membership will be extended townwide and anyone who will enjoy the work is earnestly requested to join the chorus. There will be no membership fee.

FATAL EXPLOSION IN CHEMICAL PLANT

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 8.—One man was killed, and six others injured by an explosion at the Niagara Electric-Chemical Company plant at Buffalo Avenue and 26th street at 10:25 o'clock last night. Fire followed the explosion, completely destroying the storage and shipping rooms. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

The cause of the explosion is not definitely known, but it is believed to have been caused by a foreign substance coming in contact with sodium peroxide.

The dead man is Peter Pkowowski, 39 years old, of 2,511 East Falls street. He was burned beyond recognition. His identity was learned by a company check found in clothing on the body. The man was dead when found. An official statement just given out accounts for all men who were in the building.

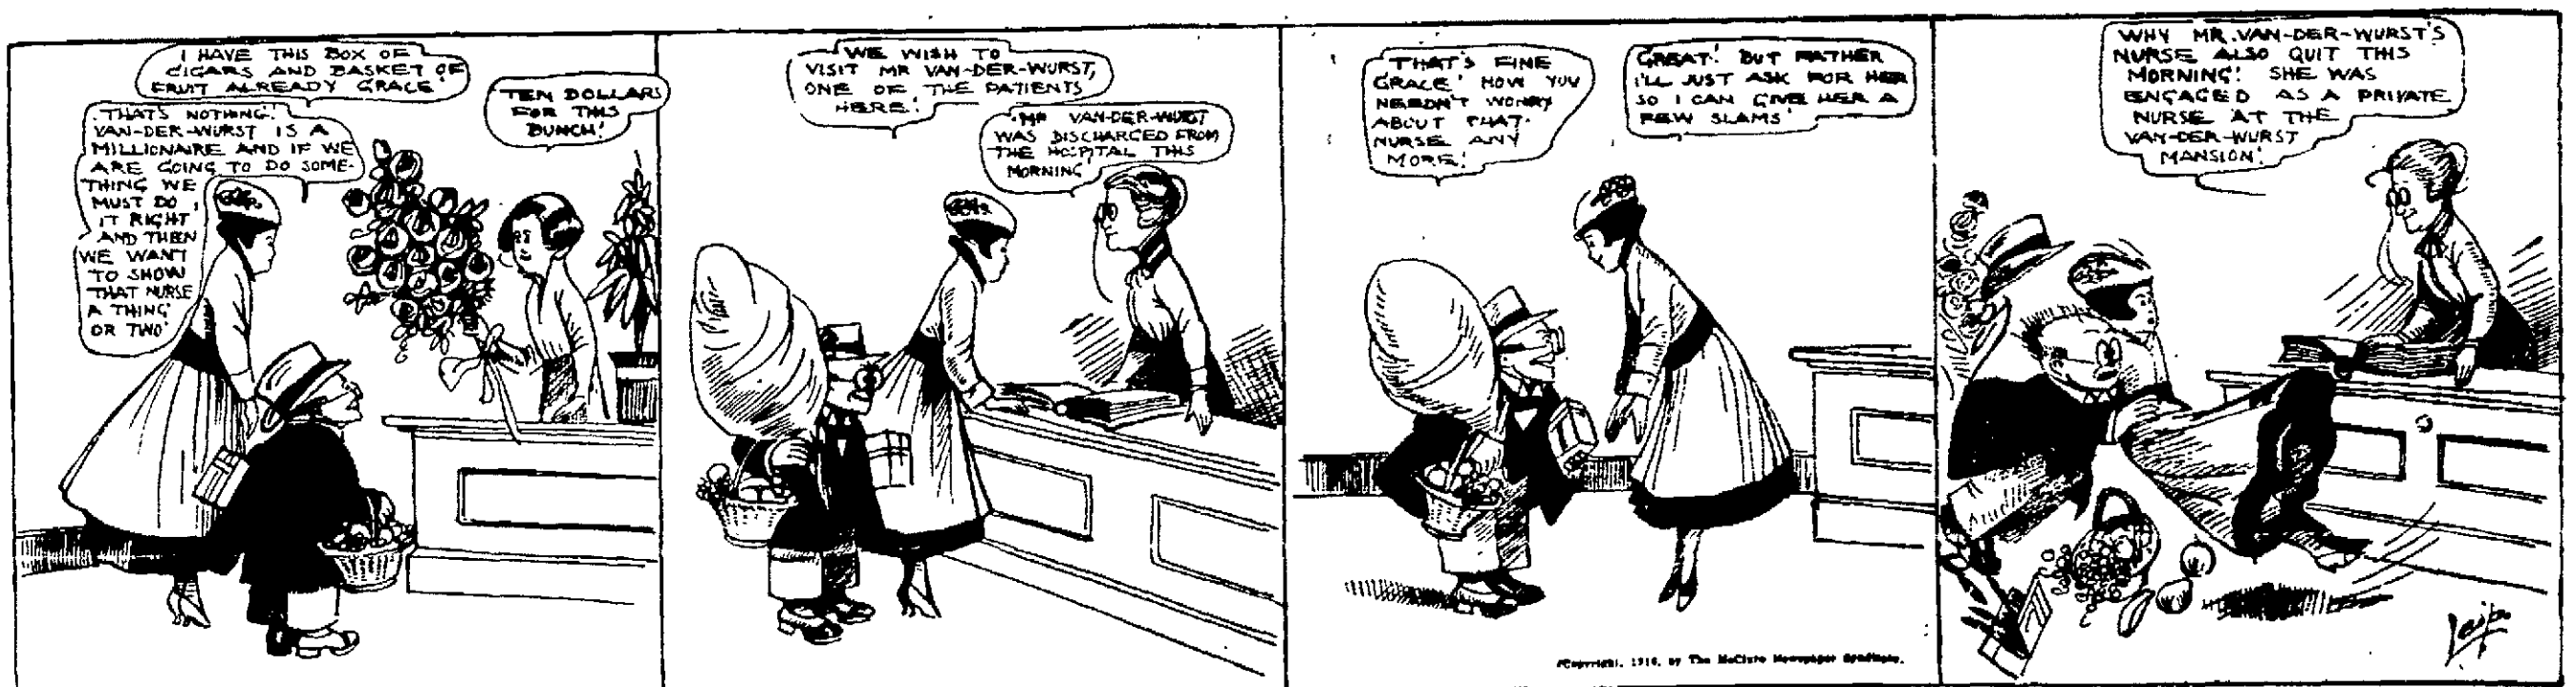

The blaze is still burning, firemen being unable to use water because of the minor explosions which followed. The fire is eating its way toward three large chemical tanks and further destruction is feared.

HOWARD'S TAX SCHEME.

The Judge Has a Plan For Equalizing Cost of Government.

Judge Wesley O. Howard of Troy was one of the principal speakers at the annual dinner of the Rensselaer board of trade at Rensselaer on Tuesday night.

In his address, Judge Howard advocated progressive taxation for the relief of the poor of the state. "By such system," he said, "men of accumulated wealth would bear the greater burden of the state's expense, while the man with mortgaged property would be given a chance to pay his obligations and at the same time co-operate within his means. 'The magnates who own little real estate, but control millions of dollars on paper, pay comparatively small taxes, while the poor man who pays $500 down on a $1,500 home has to pay taxation on the full value of his property.'"

BAKER MAKES AN AFFIDAVIT

City Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., as attorney for Max Baker in the latter's suit against the Shatemuck Realty Company, Frank Forman and Mrs. Ella Wolven England, filed answering affidavits on Tuesday to those submitted on Monday and under the decision of Judge Hasbrouck at Monday's hearing the opposing counsel had twelve hours in which to file replying affidavits to those submitted by Baker.

Baker's affidavit denies that he said that if the price of the Wolven store, stock and fixtures went above $2,000 he could be "counted out," and he swears that he said that if the price went above $35,000 or $36,000, he could be "counted out." He also swears that he was told by officers of the Shatemuck Realty Company that they had paid $33,500, and thus had saved him money, but that they had not taken the property in his name. Part of Baker's affidavit, in relation to conversations which occurred at the office of Brinnier & Canfield, is corroborated in an affidavit made by City Judge Brinnier, and an affidavit submitted by Mrs. Baker states that until the sale was made to the Shatemuck Realty Company, that Schuyler C. Schultz, president of that company, was a constant caller at the house to see Mr. Baker.

UNION CENTER.

Union Center, March 7.—On Thursday afternoon of last week the Ladies' Aid Society of this place celebrated their tenth birthday and had as their guests the Ladies' Aid Society of Ulster Park. The meeting was opened with singing with Mrs. William Rand at the piano and was conducted by the president in the usual manner. After the reports, etc., Mrs. Belle Coutant gave a reading entitled "When Father Hung the Picture on the Wall," followed by a monologue by Mrs. Laura Herring, which was much enjoyed by all. The next number on the program was a berry contest. The first prize went to Mrs. DuMont and the booby prize to Mrs. Lillian Wells. The refreshment committee served dainty refreshments, the centerpiece being a fine birthday cake decorated with candles which were lighted, after which the president of the visiting society, Mrs. Edith Storey, and the president of our society, Mrs. Laura Herring, cut the cake. The color scheme of the decorations was pink and white. The occasion was one long to be remembered by all present.

Mrs. R. Mott of Poughkeepsie spent a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Proper. A number from this place attended the dance at Odd Fellows' Hall on Friday evening.

One night last week some one entered Frank Van Wagenen's barn and Charles Warren's house. Miss Harriet Eckert is visiting her sister, Mrs. Clarence Van Aken, in Kingston.

The Ladies' Aid Society is making arrangements for a dime social to be held on Monday evening, March 20. An entertainment will be given. Admission 10 cents, which will pay for coffee, cake and a sandwich. Ice cream will be on sale extra. Remember the date, March 20. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Miss Rachel Hoffman of Kingston and Miss Frances Fannell of Brooklyn called on friends in this place on Thursday.

THE VLY.

The Vly, March 8.—The Busy Bee Society will hold a measuring party in The Vly Hall March 16. If stormy next fair evening. All come out and help make this a success as the proceeds are for our minister's salary.

Theodore Ackert is visiting his sister, Mrs. William Myers, in New York city. He is greatly missed by his many friends in this place, and all wish for his return soon.

Albert Bush is very ill at present. Miss Pearl Lasher called on Miss Helen Van Demark Saturday afternoon.

Miss Pearl Lasher wishes to contradict the statement made in Friday's paper concerning the six boys who visited her school.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Jansen and Mr. and Mrs. M. Burger, and Neita and Freda Bush visited Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krom and family Saturday evening. A very pleasant evening was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Trowbridge spent Saturday and Sunday at his son's, Russell Trowbridge, of Kraserike.

Our Trowbridge has purchased a new house. Miss Uly Trowbridge, Vesta Bush and Agnes Olson are expected home soon for their Easter vacation. Their many friends will be glad to see them.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

"Twixt the optimist and the pessimist The difference is small. The optimist sees the doughnut. The pessimist sees the hole."

SOME GOOD WINTER DISHES.

The use of the raisin has been by no means exhausted. Its delicate flavor adds to many dishes.

Raisin Souffle.—Steam a generous half cupful of raisins until plump and soft, chop fine, add three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and ten drops of vanilla, mix well and add to the whites of four eggs, which have been beaten until stiff with a pinch of salt and a quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Turn into a buttered dish, dust with powdered sugar and bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes. When it seems firm, well browned and crusty, take from the oven and serve immediately, as it falls quickly.

It may be served with a yellow custard, made of the yolks of the eggs or with sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

A most delicious fudge may be made by using raisins instead of chocolate. Take two cupfuls of sugar, a third of a cupful of corn sirup, a half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter and boil to the soft-ball stage. Add a half cupful of steamed chopped raisins, and the same amount of walnut meats.

Fruit Salad.—Remove the pulp from two grapefruits, add three tablespoonfuls of pineapple, a half pound of grapes, skinned and seeded, a few marshmallows, cut in quarters, whipped cream, with two tablespoonfuls of cooked salad dressing, stirred into it, add seasoning of salt and a dash of cayenne. Handle as lightly as possible, for the grapefruit crushes and becomes too juicy, spoiling the salad.

Grapefruit Salad.—Take two grapefruit, one red and two green peppers, and one cupful of finely diced celery. Remove the grapefruit to keep the sections unbroken, chop the peppers and arrange the sections (two or three) in a nest of lettuce, sprinkle with the peppers and celery and serve with a good French dressing, substituting the juice of the grapefruit for some of the vinegar in the dressing. Serve on watercress. One may serve this in the grapefruit shells; then the sections should be broken in pieces and the other ingredients lightly mixed with the grapefruit.

GRAPES.—Take two grapefruit, one red and two green peppers, and one cupful of finely diced celery. BAKER MAKES AN AFFIDAVIT

City Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., as attorney for Max Baker in the latter's suit against the Shatnuck Realty Company, Frank Forman and Mrs. Ella Wolven England, filed answering affidavits on Tuesday to those submitted on Monday and under the decision of Judge Hasbrouck at Monday's hearing the opposing counsel had twelve hours in which to file replying affidavits to those submitted by Baker.

Baker's affidavit denies that he said that if the price of the Wolven store, stock and fixtures went above $2,000 he could be "counted out," and he swears that he said that if the price went above $35,000 or $36,000, he could be "counted out." He also swears that he was told by officers of the Shatnuck Realty Company that they had paid $25,000, and thus had saved him money, but that they had not taken the property in his name. Part of Baker's affidavit, in relation to conversations which occurred at the office of Brinnier & Canfield, is corroborated in an affidavit made by City Judge Brinnier, and an affidavit submitted by Mrs. Baker states that until the sale was made to the Shatnuck Realty Company, that Schuyler C. Schultz, president of that company, was a constant caller at the house to see Mr. Baker.

UNION CENTER.

Union Center, March 7.—On Thursday afternoon of last week the Ladies' Aid Society of this place celebrated their tenth birthday and had as their guests the Ladies' Aid Society of Ulster Park. The meeting was opened with singing with Mrs. William Rand at the piano and was conducted by the president in the usual manner. After the reports, etc., Mrs. Belle Coutant gave a reading entitled "When Father Hung the Picture On the Wall," followed by a monologue by Mrs. Laura Herring, which was much enjoyed by all. The next number on the program was a berry contest. The first prize went to Mrs. DuMont and the booby prize to Mrs. Lillias Wells. The refreshment committee served dainty refreshments, the centerpiece being a fine birthday cake decorated with candles which were lighted, after which the president of the visiting society, Mrs. Edith Storey, and the president of our society, Mrs. Laura Herring, cut the cake. The color scheme of the decorations were pink and white. The occasion was one long to be remembered by all present.

Mrs. R. Mott of Poughkeepsie spent a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Proper.

A number from this place attended the dance at Odd Fellows' Hall on Friday evening.

One night last week some one entered Frank Van Wagenen's barn and Charles Warren's house.

SOME GOOD WINTER DISHES.

The use of the raisin has been by no means exhausted. Its delicate flavor adds to many dishes.

Raisin Souffle.—Steam a generous half cupful of raisins until plump and soft, chop fine, add three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and ten drops of vanilla, mix well and add to the whites of four eggs, which have been beaten until stiff, with a pinch of salt and a quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Turn into a buttered dish, dust with powdered sugar and bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes. When it seems firm, well browned and crusty, take from the oven and serve immediately, as it falls quickly.

It may be served with a yellow custard, made of the yolks of the eggs or with sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

A most delicious fudge may be made by using raisins instead of chocolate. Take two cupfuls of sugar, a third of a cupful of corn syrup, a half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter and boil to the soft-ball stage. Add a half cupful of steamed chopped raisins, and the same amount of walnut meats.

Fruit Salad.—Remove the pulp from two grapefruits, add three tablespoonfuls of pineapple, a half pound of grapes, skinned and seeded, a few marshmallows, cut in quarters, whipped cream, with two tablespoonfuls of cooked salad dressing, stirred into it, add seasoning of salt and a dash of cayenne. Handle as lightly as possible, for the grapefruit crushes and becomes too juicy, spoiling the salad.

Grapefruit Salad.—Take two grapefruit, one red and two green peppers, and one cupful of finely diced celery. Remove the grapefruit to keep the sections unbroken, chop the peppers and arrange the sections (two or three) in a nest of lettuce, sprinkle with the peppers and celery and serve with a good French dressing, substituting the juice of the grapefruit for some of the vinegar in the dressing. Serve on watercress. One may serve this in the grapefruit shells; then the sections should be broken in pieces and the other ingredients lightly mixed with the grapefruit.

ACCORD.

Accord, March 8.—Mrs. Sarah Catharine Clearwater, an aged and greatly respected inhabitant of this place, died after an illness of several weeks. Funeral will be held Thursday morning, March 9, at 10 o'clock at her late residence. She leaves a very large circle of relatives and friends to mourn her loss. We extend our sympathies.

Communion service was held in the Reformed Church last Sunday morning. A most beautiful feature of the service was the public reception into the church of eighteen splendid young people, who by their actions showed that they had chosen whom they would serve.

Prayer meetings in preparation for the evangelistic services that will soon be held in the Reformed Church will be held at the church Tuesday and Friday evenings.

The Rev. Henry Smith of Rifton spent Sunday in town; speaking at the M. E. Church in the morning, at Kripplush in the afternoon and at Whitfield in the evening.

SHORT TERM OF SUPREME COURT

Little on Day Calendar—Difference Between Electric Company and Brick Owners May Be Settled by Agreement.

From all indications the present term of supreme court will be a very short one. A number of the cases on the calendar have been put over the term and only a few will be disposed of at this time. In all 33 have been put over the term and one case, The Queen Insurance Company of America against the New York Central Railroad Company, an action to recover for negligence, has been settled. Amos Van Etten represented the railroad and Albert W. Vessel the insurance company.

The case of A. Norton, as administrator, against the New York Central Railroad, an action to recover damages for death, etc., has been discontinued. Amos Van Etten represented the railroad and N. Frank O'Reilly the plaintiff.

But two cases appear on the day calendar for today. No. 89, an action to recover rent, brought by Lanthia Hoornbeck against Abram Dero, and No. 94, Edward V. Harman against William L. Bischoff, an action for goods sold and delivered.

The Ulster Light, Heat and Power Company case took up the term of the court on Tuesday afternoon and at the close of the case attorneys for two of the defendants made a statement that the differences involved in the case might be settled. The Empire Brick and Supply Company and the Washburn Company were represented and thought an agreement could be reached. No member of the Alpha Company, the third concern involved in the proceedings, was present and Amos Van Etten, who appeared for that company, was not in a position to announce what his company would do but there is every reason to suppose that if the other two can agree the third will also do so.

Companies Want to Extend Their Business.

The application of the Ulster Electric Light, Heat and Power Company against the Washburn Brothers Company, the Alpha Brick and Holding Company and the Empire Brick and Supply Company, for permission to condemn an easement for poles and transmission wires, took the entire day in court.

Mr. Tobey, the general manager of the Kingston Gas and Electric Company, testified that to generate sufficient electric energy in Saugerties would involve the erection of a new plant which would cost between $50,000 and $60,000; that the demand of the village and the individual consumers was not sufficient to justify the expenditure of the money and that the Ulster Company could buy electricity from the Kingston Gas and Electric Company or from Hook Falls at a rate which would enable it to supply all the wants of Saugerties for years to come at a reasonable price. Mr. Tobey said that it was inadvisable to run the wire along the highway because the highway was not straight, and it was absolutely essential that a wire carrying high voltage should run straight. Also to run it along the highway would of necessity compel its being run through the branches of trees or the cutting down of the trees. The company was opposed to the destruction of trees, and so were the people who owned them and to run it through trees was impracticable, as wind and storms would interfere with the operation of the wire probably resulting in the burning of the trees.

Thomas H. Gray, general manager of the Hook Falls Power Company testified to the same effect, saying that in addition to the objections suggested by Mr. Tobey to run the wire along the highway would seriously interfere with telephonic communication, as under certain atmospheric conditions, induction between the wire of the electric company and the telephone wires would be established to the detriment of the latter as they carry a weaker current and it would make communication by telephone during the existence of these conditions, almost impossible.

Judge Clearwater, quietly remarked just before the noon recess, that if through the opposition of the residents of Saugerties, the application of the electric light company failed, it would not be retrieved, and the people of Saugerties could be left in the position described by Mr. Finger, being unable because of the opposition of their own people, to develop their industries by the aid of electricity as many of them planned to do.

When the court recovered after the noon recess, Judge Clearwater said that there seemed to have been an amelioration of the attitude of the opponents of the application. That he was informed they were willing to consent to its being strangled upon the petitioner changing the location of its poles and wires over their property. That he was unwilling to accept a general statement to that effect but would like the record to show whether this was true or not.

Judge Hasbrouck suggested that the entire record be put in, and if an amicable arrangement could be reached, he would hold the case open for that purpose.

Position of Property Owners Made Clear.

construction. They had also considered the possibility of using a steam shovel for excavating clay. The contestants recalled Robert Maize, to testify to the character of labor which brick makers employed. He said it consisted largely of negroes, Italians and Hungarians. Judge Clearwater asked him whether he was willing that the company should go through his property if they shifted their poles and wires to the west of the point where it was proposed to put them. He said he was. John Washburn, the vice-president and general manager of the Washburn Brothers Company, said that that company would also consent and were willing to agree to a location. Amos Van Etten, who represented the Alpha Brick and Holding Company, said he was unable to say what his client would do as its president, whom he expected here to attend the trial, was ill. Further testimony similar to that stated above was given and the matter was held open until the 5th of April to see whether an adjustment could be reached.

NEWTON D. BAKER
FORMER MAYOR OF CLEVELAND,
NOW SECRETARY OF WAR.

Newton D. Baker, former Mayor of Cleveland, who has accepted the post of Secretary of War was a student under President Wilson when the latter was an instructor at Johns Hopkins University.

When the President was selecting his personal staff, Baker was one of the names suggested. He was then in his first term as Mayor of Cleveland in 1912. He was re-elected in 1914 and left office in 1915. He has always been a prominent Democrat. He has had rough and tumble experience of politics, being a long-term pupil of Tom Johnson, that is considered necessary to enable him to handle the difficult political phases of the secretary's job.

He was born in Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 2, 1871 and is a graduate of Johns Hopkins and Washington and Lee Universities.

SNOW BRINGS SOME GOOD THINGS

The snow storm of Tuesday and today has resulted in two distinct advantages, it having lessened the hobo pest and patched up the sleighing.

For some time past the lower section of the city has been over-run with hoboes begging food, and at some houses downtown as many as three and four hoboes called each day begging. As one man said today as he rested on his snow shovel and surveyed the large patch of unshoveled walk "The hobo seems to know instinctively when to call and to stay away. Every time we have had a snow storm this winter we have not been pestered by them, but as soon as the walks have been shoveled clear of snow, then there is another visitation from them, but believe me if there is any work to do shoveling snow for a meal then they do not to be found."

The warm weather that preceded the present storms had washed the snow on the city streets and made it hard sledding, but the sleighing has again been patched up. This winter is rather remarkable from the fact that there has been three months continuous sleighing, and indications point to the fact that there is likely to be at least a week more sleighing, and mayhaps longer.

The ice harvest in this vicinity has been brought to a close and it is hardly likely that any more ice will be cut this season. It is understood that a fairly large crop has been harvested from the river and creek.

While the snow storm has put a sudden termination to the hobo pest it has not assisted in relieving the muscles of the householders who have been kept busy all winter shoveling snow, and there are very few men outside of the city who have done a good business who do not hope that the storm of today is the last of the season.

VON BERNSTORFF EXPLAINS ORDERS

Washington, March 8.—The United States today received from Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, a complete detailed explanation of its orders to submarine commanders to sink armed merchantmen without warning.

This explanation, covering the German side of the controversy, was explanatory of the announcement previously received by the state department from Berlin and according to the ambassador was intended to clear up what has been considered as doubtful points by the United States and especially to show that the new plans of the German government in no way abridge or conflict with the assurances given to this government.

The ambassador was with Secretary Lansing for less than five minutes. On leaving he said that he believed the communication would make plain just exactly what Germany planned to do. He said that he had asked Secretary Lansing for permission to make the document public and that having been granted he would do so shortly.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, March 8.—It is known to every one around that there is in connection with M. E. Church an auxiliary club with over 100 active members and a goodly number of honorary ones, and the first Friday in each month this club holds its business meeting and a social combined.

Last Friday the home of the president, Mrs. R. H. Decker, was at the disposal of the club, and she, as hostess, welcomed sixty of the members and guests. Some said March came in like a lion, still with that fact which is nothing new, the ladies marched right on to Glen View and that proved the spirit of progressiveness that characterizes the true club woman of today. At the appointed hour the gavel fell and old business, new business and all things pertaining to church work was handled and thrown off in a manner as easily as a man would get out of his overcoat.

These meetings are conspicuous in the history of Methodism, for the dignity and earnestness with which all work is presented and inspiration gained from helpful conferences, the consideration for the opinion of all and complete elimination of personal prejudices and jealousies, and prominence of high proof of civilization.

"Securing the greatest good from the greatest numbers," and every meeting is usually accompanied with a spirit of good fellowship and harmony.

One new member was elected, Mrs. Marjorie Pressler. Special interest centered in finishing plans for the Easter supper and sale to be held in the church parlors on April 25.

All of the committees gave encouraging reports. The guests were Mrs. Winchell of Kingston, Miss Van Nostrand of Ulster Park, Miss Lizzie Decker, Mrs. Chester Atkins and daughter, the Rev. J. C. Coddington, Fred Decker, Edward Miller, R. H. Decker, Mrs. Victor Clearwater and Ruby Cornell.

All enjoyed the social hour at the close of business session, and a bountiful repast was served, consisting of finger rolls, hot escalloped peas, hot French fried potatoes, grape fruit marmalade, cucumber pickles, celery, several varieties of cake, coffee and ice cream.

Mrs. Decker knew she had a Methodist crowd for they were so blithe. At a late hour the ladies left, with expressions of gratitude for the afternoon's pleasures and best wishes for the Decker household.

Miss Rowena Harcourt entertained a few friends on Monday afternoon at bridge whist and they enjoyed seeing who could have the best hand.

Music Study Club held its meeting at the home of Mrs. Townsend Abrams on Church street Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Nathan Williams was the hostess.

Queen Esther Circle of M. E. Church held a food sale last Saturday in W. E. Wilcox's store. They disposed of their tables without any trouble and took in quite some cash.

Arthur Merritt, who sued the New Paltz Traction Company about two years ago, has at last been awarded $1,200. The suit was pending a long time.

A drama will be given by Camp Fire Girls on March 31, in J. W. Feeter's Hall.

H. P. Wilcox was a business visitor in Poughkeepsie last Friday.

Albert Rose is papering the new house of Captain and Mrs. R. H. Decker on Wilcox avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Chester Atkins will occupy it April 1.

The senior class of the high school expect to give a musical and dramatic evening the latter part of this month. They are drilled now for the farce, "Haus Von Smack."

This is a good one and funny. We know the people will be pleased. Watch for the date.

Next Wednesday evening, March 15, the Daughters of America, will hold their regular meeting at that time. Initiations will be a feature of the session. Quite some business to be transacted and the councilor most cordially requests that every member be on time, and the degree team present themselves for their work. All expect to pass a pleasant and profitable evening.

George Upright is very ill at his home on Main street. He has been in poor health for sometime. His friends hope he may recover. He lost his brother about two weeks ago, which we think has caused him to get worse.

The Auxiliary Dramatic Association, will by request, present the farce, "Dinner at Six," in the K of P. Hall, March 22, at the annual reception and supper of the order of Knights of Pythias.

SHORT TERM OF SUPREME COURT

Little on Day Calendar—Differences Between Electric Company and Brickyard Owners May Be Settled by Agreement.

From all indications the present term of supreme court will be a very short one. A number of the cases on the calendar have been put over the term and only a few will be disposed of at this term. In all 33 have been put over the term and one case, The Queen Insurance Company of America against the New York Central Railroad Company, an action to recover for negligence, has been settled. Amos Van Etten represented the railroad and Albert W. Meisel the insurance company.

The case of A. Norton, as administrator, against the New York Central Railroad, an action to recover damages for death, etc., has been discontinued. Amos Van Etten represented the railroad and N. Frank O'Reilly the plaintiff.

But two cases appear on the day calendar for today. No. 50, an action to recover rent, brought by Jantha Hoorbeck against Abraham Devo, and No. 94, Edward V. Harman against William L. Bischof, an action for goods sold and delivered.

The Ulster Light, Heat and Power Company case took up the term of the court on Tuesday afternoon and at the close of the case attorneys for two of the defendants made a statement that the differences involved in the case might be settled. The Empire Brick and Supply Company and the Washburn Company were represented and thought an agreement could be reached. No member of the Alpha Company, the third concern involved in the proceeding, was present and Amos Van Etten, who appeared for that company, was not in a position to announce what his company would do but there is every reason to suppose that if the other two can agree the third will also do so.

Companies Want to Extend Their Business.

The application of the Ulster Electric Light, Heat and Power Company against the Washburn Brothers Company, the Alpha Brick and Holding Company and the Empire Brick and Supply Company, for permission to condemn an easement for poles and transmission wires, took the entire day in court.

Mr. Tobey, the general manager of the Kingston Gas and Electric Company, testified that to generate sufficient electric energy in Saugerties would involve the erection of a new plant which would cost between $50,000 and $60,000; that the demand of the village and the individual consumers was not sufficient to justify the expenditure of the money and that the Ulster Company could buy electricity from the Kingston Gas and Electric Company or from Honk Falls at a rate which would enable it to supply all the wants of Saugerties for years to come at a reasonable price. Mr. Tobey said that it was inadvisable to run the wire along the highway because the highway was not straight, and it was absolutely essential that a wire carrying high voltage should run straight. Also to run it along the highway would of necessity compel its being run through the branches of trees or the cutting down of the trees. The company was opposed to the destruction of trees, and so were the people who owned them, and to run it through trees was impracticable, as wind and storms would interfere with the operation of the wire, probably resulting in the burning of the trees.

Thomas H. Gray, general manager of the Honk Falls Power Company testified to the same effect, saying that in addition to the objections suggested by Mr. Tobey to run the wire along the highway would seriously interfere with telephonic communication, as under certain atmospheric conditions, induction between the wire of the electric company and the telephone wires would be established, to the detriment of the latter, as they carry a weaker current, and it would make connection by telephone during the existence of these conditions, almost impossible.

Judge Clearwater quietly remarked just before the noon recess, that if through the opposition of the residents of Saugerties, the application of the electric light company failed, it would not be renewed, and the people of Saugerties could be left in the position described by Mr. Finger, being unable because of the opposition of their own people, to develop their industries by the aid of electricity as many of them planned to do.

When the court reconvened after the noon recess, Judge Clearwater said that there seemed to have been an amelioration of the attitude of the opponents of the application. That he was informed they were willing to consent to its being granted upon the petitioner changing the location of its poles and wires over their property. That he was unwilling to accept a general statement to that effect but would like the record to show whether this was true or not.

Judge Hasbrouck suggested that the entire record be put in, and if an amicable arrangement could be reached, he would hold the case open for that purpose.

Position of Property Owners Made Clear.

During the afternoon testimony showed that there the line might be located upon the properties it would be perhaps 60 years before the working of the yards would compel the line to be changed. Here Judge Clearwater who appeared for the light company stated that although he had been with us for 25 years he hoped to still among us one hundred years hence when the time for changing the line came.

The Washburn Company testified that they had had an aerial system of conveying clay from the pits to the mixing machines under consideration and if the electric light line was built it would interfere with such a construction. They had also considered the possibility of using a steam shovel for excavating clay.

The contestants recalled Robert Main, to testify to the character of labor which brick makers employed. He said it consisted largely of negroes, Italians and Hungarians. Judge Clearwater asked him whether he was willing that the company should go through his property if they shifted their poles and wires to the west of the point where it was proposed to put them. He said he was. John Washburn, the vice-president and general manager of the Washburn Brothers Company, said that that company would also consent and were willing to agree to a location. Amos Van Etten, who represented the Alpha Brick and Holding Company, said he was unable to say what his client would do as its president, whom he expected here to attend the trial, was ill. Further testimony similar to that stated above was given and the matter was held open until the 8th of April to see whether an adjustment could be reached.

Judge Clearwater is counsel for the Ulster Electric Light, Heat and Power Company; the property owners are represented by George F. Kaufman of Saugerties and Amos Etten of Kingston, with Howard Chipp, of counsel.

NEWTON D. BAKER
FORMER MAYOR OF CLEVELAND,
NOW SECRETARY OF WAR.

Newton D. Baker, former Mayor of Cleveland, who has accepted the post of Secretary of War was a student under President Wilson when the latter was an instructor at Johns Hopkins University.

When the President was selecting the personnel of his Cabinet prior to his inauguration he tendered the post of Secretary of the Interior to Baker. The latter declined, desiring to continue as Mayor of Cleveland.

Baker is not entirely without Cabinet experience. He served as private secretary to Postmaster General Wilson from 1896 to 1897. In addition to practicing law, he was City Solicitor of Cleveland for ten years serving from 1902 to 1916.

His work as Solicitor won him public favor and he was elected to his first term as Mayor of Cleveland in 1912. He was re-elected in 1914 and left office in 1915. He has always been a prominent Democrat.

He has had rough and tumble experience of politics, being a long-term pupil of Tom Johnson, that is considered necessary to enable him to handle the difficult political phases of the secretary's job.

He was born in Martinsburgh, W. Va., Dec. 3, 1871, and is a graduate of Johns Hopkins and Washington and Lee Universities.

DAIRY RATIONS FOR MARCH.

Mixture Recommended For Feeding by Cornell College of Agriculture.

On the basis of cost in relation to feeding value, the following mixture is recommended as a dairy feed during the month of March: 500 pounds hominy, 500 pounds distillers dried grains, 500 pounds mixed feed, 300 pounds gluten feed, 200 pounds oil meal.

During the past month distillers dried grains have dropped a little in price; gluten feed has advanced; cotton seed meal and linseed meal have taken a drop, but according to the department of animal husbandry of the state college of agriculture at Cornell they are still out of the question except as a small part of the mixture.

The 200 pounds of oil meal has been recommended in the mixtures given, although oil meal is relatively expensive. Since spring is coming on, however, the college thinks it is well to have oil meal in a ration for cows that are going to calve. It will be good for all cows at this time of the year. Since it is dropping in price, and because of its high manurial value, the college thinks that dairymen will be justified in putting some of it into the ration.

The prices for the ingredients of the mixture given are as follows for the respective quantities: Hominy, $7.50; distillers dried grains, $8.19; mixed feed, $8.69; gluten feed, $5.03; oil meal, $3.90. These are wholesale prices f. o. b. any station taking the Rochester freight rate. The total, $31.11 wholesale, is considered reasonable by the college for as good a mixture as that which it recommends.

SNOW BRINGS SOME GOOD THINGS

The snow storm of Tuesday and today has resulted in two distinct advantages, it having lessened the hobo pest and patched up the sleighing.

For some time past the lower section of the city has been over-run with hoboes begging food, and at some houses downtown as many as three and four hoboes called each day begging. As one man said today as he rested on his snow shovel and surveyed the large patch of unschooled walk "The hobo seems to know instinctively when to call and to stay away. Every time we have had a snow storm this winter we have not been pestered by them, but as soon as the walks have been shoveled clear of snow, then there is another visitation from them, but believe me if there is any work to do shoveling snow for a meal then they are not to be found."

The warm weather that preceded the present storms had wasted the snow on the city streets and made it hard sledding, but the sleighing has again been patched up. This winter is rather remarkable from the fact that there has been three months continuous sleighing, and indications point to the fact that there is likely to be at least a week more sleighing, and mayhaps longer.

The ice harvest in this vicinity has been brought to a close and it is hardly likely that any more ice will be cut this season. It is understood that a fairly large crop has been harvested from the river and creek.

While the snow storm has put a sudden termination to the hobo pest it has not assisted in relieving the muscles of the householders who have been kept busy all winter shoveling snow, and there are very few men outside of the liverymen who have done a good business who do not hope that the storm of today is the last of the season.

VON BERNSTORFF EXPLAINS ORDERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 8.—The United States today received from Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, a complete detailed explanation of its orders to submarine commanders to sink armed merchantmen without warning. This explanation, covering the German side of the controversy, was explanatory of the announcement previously received by the state department from Berlin and according to the ambassador was intended to clear up what has been considered as doubtful points by the United States and especially to show that the new plans of the German government in no way abridge or conflict with the assurances given to this government.

The ambassador was with Secretary Lansing for less than five minutes. On leaving he said that he believed the communication would make plain just exactly what Germany planned to do. SPARKS OF HELP

That is what the Want Ads are to many hundreds, if not thousands, of people every day—sparks of help in time of need.

Just like electric sparks, they flash out their message of appeal all over the community and the result is that in a very few hours they bring about the desired result.

Ask anyone who has made use of these sparks of help and he will advise you at once to get acquainted with the potency of the Want Ads.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 8, 1916.

It is a charming trait in a man's character which enables him to be overjoyed by little things, and so we are bound to smile indulgently over the expressions of the president's friends regarding the vote in the House Tuesday on the McLe-more resolution. The latter provided in effect that Americans should be warned that if they took passage in armed belligerent ships their Government would not protect them, and that they must travel at their own risk in spite of international law. The straightforward thing to do was to vote directly on this resolution, so that Congress would be in the position of either supporting or not supporting the President, but this was not done. A motion to lay on the table was carried by a vote of something like two to one. As it stands, the man who voted to table can tell his constituents that he was trying to kill this noxious resolution, or he can say that he didn't want to kill it, but leave it so that it could be taken from the table at some other time when it had more chance of passage. The man who voted not to table can say that he did so because he wanted a vote on the merits of the proposition. Thus the most obstreperous constituent can be satisfied and campaigning is made much easier. The Senators who voted on the motion to table the Gore resolution are in the same delightful situation. Parliamentary law is a useful device. About the only good thing that has come out of the performance of this two-ring circus is that it is evident that the opponents of the President's policy do not feel themselves strong enough to make a stand-up fight for the relinquishment of American rights. Germany can hardly fail to reach this conclusion.

Publishers and readers of newspapers are alike interested in certain statistics contained in N. W. Ayer & Son's Newspaper Annual for 1916. It shows a continuance of the tendency of newspapers to decrease in number through consolidation or extinction. There are now 11,692 towns in the United States where newspapers are published—a decrease for the year of 47. The people in the places thus bereft are, of course, glad of the deliverance, since there is nothing more pitiable than the spectacle of an editor trying to satisfy a want that never was felt. During the year a total of 1,547 papers have ceased publication, while 1,412 new ones have been started, with the practical certainty that they also will soon perish. This net reduction of 135 periodicals is the largest on record, but it will not long have that distinction. The chief reason is that a first-class newspaper must have advertising patronage, and merchants are beginning to realize more clearly the folly of paying twice to reach the same people. In many a town the business men have actually demanded that two papers consolidate, and in many others they combine to discourage the starting of new papers. This is in sharp contrast to conditions a score of years ago, when everybody thought the more the merrier. Another interesting point brought out in the Directory is that of the regular daily papers in this country, 1,834 are issued in the evening and 698 in the morning. It is well known among publishers that the evening paper is rapidly crowding out the morning paper, which is a pity, since a good many of us simply cannot get along without a paper both night and morn.

As an illustration of certain remarks in the foregoing paragraph, we quote as follows from a paper which is itself a product of consolidation which has been beneficial to everybody concerned—the Schenectady Union-Star:

A few months ago it was announced in the newspaper trade papers that a new daily was to be started at Port Huron, Mich. Now comes the statement by the projectors that the plan has been abandoned because of an insufficient advertising support, the field having been thoroughly canvassed and not enough advertising contracts being secured to meet even one-half of the weekly payroll. There is only so much advertising to be had in any city. Advertisers cannot increase their advertising appropriation simply because there is to be another newspaper established. A wise advertiser spends a certain amount of money each year based upon his total business, and cannot afford to spend more; so that when another newspaper is projected, the advertiser is naturally forced into the position of being opposed to it. He finds that two newspapers in most cities are sufficient. He tries to advertise thoroughly in one, or if he is a wise advertiser, he will generally use advertising in the two papers if both are good, but naturally using more in the better one than in the other. Schenectady advertisers still know full well the annoying conditions that existed when three newspapers were here. All three were constantly nagging the advertiser for business, when he could use but one or two at the utmost.

Another point which should not be lost sight of is that in the old days editors were so bigoted that it was almost necessary for each element in a community to have its own organ, while modern newspapers give every shade of opinion a hearing.

Hypocrites.

Augustus O. Stanley, Kentucky's new governor, who has mounted the water wagon, announced recently that during his four-year term not a drop of intoxicating drink will be allowed in the state.

"The campaign that I propose to wage against alcohol," said Governor Stanley, "is to be a thorough and honest campaign. There is too much hypocrisy among drinkers. Here is a typical instance:

"I sat one evening on a trolley car beside two women who were returning together from an afternoon's shopping tour.

"My husband goes out every evening for a little constitutional," one of the women said. Then she inquired: "Does yours?"

"No," replied the other. "No; my husband always keeps it in the house."—Washington Star.

Tricky.

A senator was talking about national preparedness.

"The man who would make political capital out of such an important question as preparedness," he said, "is as selfish and tricky as the chap in the station bar."

"A chap hustled into a station bar. He had only a minute or so to catch his train. But the bartender was busy and the chap saw that he stood to lose out on being served.

"Two gentlemen, each with whiskey and soda before him, were conversing pleasantly before the bar. Well, what does this chap do but reach over, grab one of the whiskeys and toss it off.

"The owner started back.

"How dare you?" he spluttered. "The idea! Why, that wasn't your whiskey!"

"Wasn't it?" said the chap. "Then I guess this one must be mine, eh?"

"And he tossed off the other gentleman's drink and dashed out and caught his train just as it was moving off."—Washington Post.

At 10:30 o'clock the march for supper was led by Mary Gibbons and James Cannon. Those present were the Misses Mary and Agnes McNeils, Annie and Mary Tucker, Mary and Margaret Flynn, Mary and Helen Henry, Mamie Tucker, Mary Gibbons, Elizabeth Gibbons, Bessie and Catherine Grimes, Margaret Malia, Caroline Munnely, Margaret Duffy, Ruth Henry and James Jordan, Frank Carroll, D. Mr. and Mrs. George Proper and family have moved from the house of Egbert Elsworth on Salem street to the house of Bernard Washburn on Sleightsburg.

Mrs. George Caniff of Marlborough spent Tuesday with her sister, Mrs. LeGrand Doyle, on Riverside avenue.

The annual conference supper and entertainment held in the Methodist Church last evening was well attended. The entertainment was especially good as the reports from the officers of the Ladies' Aid Society and of the different divisions were surprisingly fine, showing the social and financial condition of the society in a very encouraging and prosperous condition. The report given by the president, Mrs. Anna Elting, shows clearly to all the symmetrical bonds that unite the society as a whole. The treasurer's report was listened to and although the balance was small at the commencement of the year 1916, the increase of the finances were given a great boost by the reports of the following divisions: Division No. 1, Mrs. M. J. Major, chairman, $118.27 was realized and also a beautiful quilt was made and quilted by members of the division and in behalf of the division was presented to our pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Eugene A. Bookhout, by the chairman of the division, showing by this their affection and esteem which they have for them. Division No. 2, Mrs. Wallace Mable, chairman, their amount was $56. Division No. 3, Mrs. Anna Elting, chairman realized $100.40, making a most glorious total of $304.67. All members of the Ladies' Aid Society rising and singing "Onward Christian Soldiers, feeling very proud and encouraged of the marvelous work done by them in this year.

Rev. and Mrs. Grant Robinson of Malden spent Tuesday with Mrs. Robinson's mother, Mrs. G. P. Griffin on Hamilton street.

Monthly Meeting of Baracas.

Monday evening despite the inclement weather, a very large number of members of the Wurts Street Baptist Baraca Class held their monthly meeting in the chapel of the church. Harry Tremper, president of the Baraca Class, called the meeting to order and asked the Rev. Mr. Fuller to lead in prayer. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, the Hon. Palmer Canfield, in his opening remarks the mayor said he was very sorry that his time was so limited as he had an engagement the same evening at the banquet of the Chamber of Commerce. His talk, not a speech as the papers said, was on the most important subject of the hour, "Preparedness." But preceding his talk to the men's class he told a little incident about a woman with a large family who said it was a case of getting and gotten with her, meaning it was that way with himself in his official duties. The second speaker was the pastor, Rev. A. K. Fuller, who said that he believed the mayor's remarks were true but that he could not agree with him in regard to war. The next meeting will be held the first Monday in April. After the meeting a social time was enjoyed by the members and their friends.

The Yellow Kid Market.

P. A. Lasher's new market at 615 Broadway, which will be known as the "Yellow Kid Market," will be opened Saturday with a choice line of fresh meats. In the middle of next week vegetables and fruit, together with groceries—everything for the table—will be added to the stock and will make one of the most complete markets in the city. The store was formerly occupied by John Miller, the ice cream manufacturer. The Broadway establishment will be the main store while the Cedar street store will be continued as a branch. The new market has been painted yellow throughout and is being made most sanitary. The painting was done by B. J. Murray, the Van Deusen street painter.

There was some excitement on the Saugerties road on Tuesday evening and it was reported to the police that a horse and sleigh that Thomas J. Leonard had hired at Webster's livery early in the evening had been stolen from in front of Corey's place on the Saugerties road. It developed, however, that some "joker" seeing the rig standing had jumped in and gone for a ride, finally abandoning the outfit in a field further down the road.

The annual conference supper and entertainment held in the Methodist Church last evening was well attended. The entertainment was especially good as the reports from the officers of the Ladies' Aid Society and of the different divisions were surprisingly fine, showing the social and financial condition of the society in a very encouraging and prosperous condition. The report given by the president, Mrs. Anna Elting, shows clearly to all the symmetrical bonds that unite the society as a whole. The treasurer's report was listened to and although the balance was small at the commencement of the year 1916, the increase of the finances were given a great boost by the reports of the following divisions: Division No. 1, Mrs. M. J. Major, chairman, $118.27 was realized and also a beautiful quilt was made and quilted by members of the division and in behalf of the division was presented to our pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Eugene A. Bookhout, by the chairman of the division, showing by this their affection and esteem which they have for them. Division No. 2, Mrs. Wallace Mable, chairman, their amount was $86. Division No. 3, Mrs. Anna Elting, chairman realized $100.40, making a most glorious total of $304.67. Rev. and Mrs. Grant Robinson of Malden spent Tuesday with Mrs. Robinson's mother, Mrs. G. P. Griffin on Hamilton street.

Monthly Meeting of Baracca.

Monday evening despite the inclement weather, a very large number of members of the Wurts Street Baptist Baracca Class held their monthly meeting in the chapel of the church. Harry Tremper, president of the Baracca Class, called the meeting to order and asked the Rev. Mr. Fuller to lead in prayer. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, the Hon. Palmer Canfield.

In his opening remarks the mayor said he was very sorry that his time was so limited as he had an engagement the same evening at the banquet of the Chamber of Commerce. His talk, not a speech as the papers said, was on the most important subject of the hour, "Preparedness," or "Preparation for Life's Work." But preceding his talk to the men's class he told a little incident about a woman with a large family who said it was a case of getting in and gotten with her, meaning it was that way with himself in his official duties. The second speaker was the pastor, Rev. A. K. Fuller, who said that he believed the mayor's remarks were true but that he could not agree with him in regard to war. The next meeting will be held the first Monday in April. After the meeting a social time was enjoyed by the members and their friends.

The Yellow Kid Market.

P. A. Lasher's new market at 616 Broadway, which will be known as the "Yellow Kid Market," will be opened Saturday with a choice line of fresh meats. In the middle of next week vegetables and fruit, together with groceries—everything for the table—will be added to the stock and will make one of the most complete markets in the city.

The store was formerly occupied by John Miller, the ice cream manufacturer. The Broadway establishment will be the main store while the Cedar street store will be continued as a branch. The new market has been painted yellow throughout and is being made most sanitary. The painting was done by B. J. Murray, the Van Deusen street painter.

SAYS ICE OF THE RIVER IS UNCLEAN

Edward Hatch, Jr., chairman of the pollution committee of the Merchants' Association of New York city, has written to Dr. Herman M. Biggs, state health commissioner, stating that recent investigations conducted by the committee indicated that the ice being harvested this year in the Hudson river is dirty and polluted. "Our inspections show that the ice this year is unclean," Mr. Hatch said. "The harvesting is late and the frequent thaws and rains have washed the polluting material from the surface of the frozen ground in the upper part of the river and the tributaries in the Mohawk and Hudson river valleys and, together with sewage in the river, it is heavily polluted. Artificial cultivating, by punching holes in the ice and allowing the polluted water to flow out on the surface, has been resorted to and the cracks and openings in the ice due to frequent thaws have let polluted water in on top. The pollution is especially bad along the shores, as the bed of the railroad was dusty and dry when the ice first formed and the dust was blown far out on the ice to be frozen in with the next snow." Mr. Hatch says that as far north as Albany many of the ice houses are practically empty, and the ice which has been cut is unsatisfactory, both in quantity and quality. Mr. Hatch contends that climatic conditions have been against the industry this year and that the ice thus obtained should be used only for refrigeration. "To use most of it for drinking water or contact with food will be very dangerous," he said.

Mr. Bell, district superintendent, was present on Saturday evening and held the last quarterly conference, at which time the yearly reports of the church, Ladies' Aid, Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Society were read, and all reported the finances were the best since the church was organized. CITIZENS' LEAGUE MEMBERS MEET Annual Session and Banquet Held at Dr. Sahler's Sanatorium—Officers Elected and Addresses Delivered.

The sixth annual meeting of the Citizens' League was held on Tuesday at the Dr. C. O. Sahler Sanatorium. One hundred representatives, both men and women, were in attendance. A number from the more distant parts of the county were unable to attend on account of the severe storm, still the meeting was the largest and most enthusiastic ever assembled. Owing to the disturbance of the trolley traffic of the city, there was a delay in the opening of the morning session.

At 11:30 Dr. Sahler called the meeting to order and the opening song was "America." Harry S. Taylor played the cornet and was accompanied by Miss Florence Gallagher at the piano. Mr. Taylor said at the beginning, "Sing it with a will. Even if we jar off some of the plaster, Dr. Sahler won't care." This opened the meeting with an enthusiasm which was the spirit of the entire session throughout. The Rev. Frank B. Seeley offered a most earnest and fervent prayer and Dr. Sahler then gave the president's report for the year. He gave a short review of the work from its beginning, showing the great change that had taken place by the work of the league in Ulster county, also in the league organization itself. He paid a fine tribute to Dr. Pringle and his pioneer work in the early history of the league movement, also to Dr. Ramsey, who has since been gathered unto his Father. He also spoke of the wonderful healthy and vigorous growth of the league up to the present time. He spoke in most complimentary terms of the county officials.

Following the president's report, the Rev. Charles H. Mattison, superintendent of Orange County Citizens' League, gave an enthusiastic story of their work in that county. Then Rev. W. H. Seiple, superintendent of Ulster County League, gave his report, following which Dr. Sahler appointed a committee on nomination after which all assembled in the spacious dining room of the sanatorium, which was handsomely and artistically decorated, and the following dinner was served:

Vegetable Bouillon
Cream of Lettuce Soup
Cold Olives
Boiled Halibut, Hollandaise Sauce
Stewed Cucumbers
Roast Turkey Capon
Sage Dressing
Green Peas
Mashed Potatoes
Prohibition Salad
Chocolate Ice Cream

Assorted Cakes
Coffee
Schubert's Grape Juice.

Before the guests had entirely finished their dinner, Dr. Sahler called for the report of the nominating committee. It was given by Rev. W. H. Seiple, chairman of the committee, with the following executive and field committees, also the officers for the ensuing year:

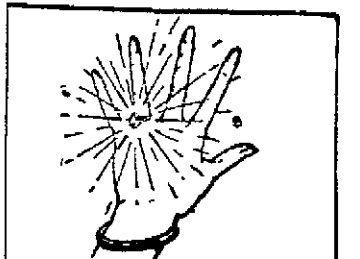

Dr. C. O. Sahler, President.

John Jones

Corner Storekeeper

John Jones kept a corner grocery—just an ordinary, every day grocery store. He did not get ahead and only made a bare living.

One day Jones decided to live on business up a bit and sought advice.

A friend showed him how to take advantage of products that were advertised in the newspapers.

He was induced to put these newspaper advertised products in the window and use them for business pullers.

Business began to get better and before long Jones became an expert on the subject of cooperation with newspaper advertising.

COTTEKILL. It begins to look as though the predictions of the "Ground Hog" the "Bear" or whatever else that might predict only six weeks more of winter, were entirely wrong as with about a foot of snow on the ground at the present time and the thermometer hanging near the zero mark the past week it is far from spring-like, even though March did come in like a lamb.

John Jones kept a corner grocery—just an ordinary, every day grocery store. He did not get ahead and only made a bare living. One day Jones decided to live business up a bit and sought advice. A friend showed him how to take advantage of products that were being advertised in the newspapers. He was induced to put these newspaper advertised products in the window and use them for business pullers. Business began to get better and before long Jones became an enthusiast on the subject of cooperation with newspaper advertising.

AGREEMENT ON SUBMARINE QUESTION NEAR

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, March 8.—That an agreement will speedily be reached which will preserve all of the rights of United States under international law and at the same time end the so-called submarine controversy was broadly hinted in official quarters today. It was stated that Great Britain will, within the next few days, deliver to this government her promise that none of her vessels traversing the Atlantic will be armed. Only such vessels as traverse the Mediterranean will carry guns and they will be specifically pledged to use such armament only in defense.

At the same time Germany placed before the United States a detailed explanation of the reasons which constrained her to order armed merchantmen sunk without warning. This explanation reviewed the offers previously made by Germany to ratify the Declaration of London and again charged specifically that the "illegal" British blockade by which an effort is being made to starve Germany out, was entirely responsible for the use of the submarine against British vessels. While making no promise it was accepted in official circles that Germany would willingly refrain from using submarines against anything but warships if England would modify her blockade to follow the lines of the Declaration of London.

It is understood that the British offer not to arm any vessels in the Atlantic trade would have been presented before now but was withheld until after the president had won his fight for non-interference by Congress. Officials look for its receipt speedily and it was believed that it would be made the basis for a renewal on the part of the United States of its efforts to secure a modus vivendi between the warring nations for the "freedom of the seas" that would have an excellent chance of success. Until it actually is received, however, officials say they could not discuss it.

A kitchen shower and a surprise party was given by Mrs. Otto Bernson, 11 East Strand, at her residence Saturday evening in honor of her sister, Miss Julia Nashlund, whose engagement to Charles Gausen has been announced. About forty guests were present. Many pretty gifts were received. The party broke up at an early hour, after partaking of a bountiful spread furnished by Mrs. Bernson. All voted Miss Julia Nashlund a charming hostess.

A Golden Wedding.

Pine Hill, March 8.—Not until a few hours previous did a few neighbors learn that Monday, March 6, was the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. R. Watson, Hill, not in time to give due notice to their friends in Kingston and other places. Nevertheless they set to work to make secret preparations for its quiet celebration. Despite the blizzard of snow prevailing last night the parlors were filled by a company of friends, old and young. At nine o'clock a wedding march was played by one of the venerable bride and groom's daughters. Following this a congratulatory address was given by the Rev. N. B. Remick of the Presbyterian Church, in which he told the story of two golden weddings with which he was acquainted. The first was that of Dr. and Mrs. Miles Goodyear of Cortland, N. Y., in 1868, at which, among other distinguished persons, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Hoes of the First Reformed Church of Kingston were honored guests, also General Hathaway of Solon, and General Randall of Cortland, whose son, Henry S., became secretary of state, and wrote a voluminous history of the state of New York. A poem composed in honor of Dr. Miles Goodyear's golden wedding was read and thus contributed to the anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hill. The other wedding, in which the speaker was a participant, was that of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Wilkinson of Troy, of which a feature was the presentation of fifty five-dollar gold pieces by the Masonic Lodge of which Mr. Wilkinson was a thirty-third degree member. Then the speaker added, "We have not gold pieces to offer you tonight but we bring golden wishes, with a bouquet of fifty imperial roses from your children, and fifty carnations from this group of old friends now surrounding you." The bouquet of roses was laid in the lap of Mrs. Hill, and the carnations upon the arm of Mr. Hill. After these specific congratulations, the minister joined the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Hill together, and laying his hand upon them pronounced a beautiful benediction. George E. Rose, who had been married 49 years, added warm congratulations to his old friends and neighbors. This was followed by music, rendered by a band of young people and the remainder of the evening was spent in enjoying the dainty refreshments provided by children and grandchildren. This demonstration of affection on the part of their neighbors was a genuine surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Hill, and it is hoped it will be a pleasant memory to them for many years to come.

CHILDREN PLEAD FOR BABY'S CARE

The entertainment given by children of Kingston, on Tuesday afternoon and evening, at St. Mary's Hall, in the interest of Baby Week, proved to be a great success and attracted excellent audiences, both of children in the afternoon and adults in the evening. Both performances opened with excellent movies, pointing an important public health lesson. In the evening another series was shown, having to do especially with child welfare work.

But the real attraction was the pretty playlette, "The Theft of Thistle-down," given by a number of school children trained by T. H. Richards, assisted by Mrs. Vernon Hull and Mrs. A. Leighton. Between the movies and the playlette, Helen Clark gave a song and dance. Then the scenery was changed and the audience was transported to cloudland, for the program stated, "Scene—Above the Clouds." A throne of great white clouds was seen, surrounded with more of the fleecy white clouds, when a group of white-robed fairies with star-dust trimmings on their robes, entered and gave a dainty dance, during which the amusing pixies came on the scene, and joined in the dance. Then, enter, an imposing herald, who blew his trumpet and announced the approach of the queen. The fairies and pixies quickly made room for the queen, who preceded by two mites of crown bearers—just living pictures of "Baby Week," and with her attendants, approached and was escorted to her throne. The wee crown bearers were seated on her right and left, with her attendants, in rainbow hued gowns were artistically grouped about her on the steps of the throne. The queen, her attendants and subjects as well as the audience were then treated to an exhibition of exquisite acrobatic dancing. Helen Dwyer first giving a solo dance. This was followed by a pretty dance by Margery Richards and Robert Hart, and finally Margery Richards gave another lovely acrobatic dance.

Then, with pomp and ceremony, the queen was crowned and called for her advisers, three, who appeared in answer to the trumpet call of the herald. They were relating their adventures when "Thistle-down," one of the pixies, staggered in, carrying a basket almost as big as himself, which he breathlessly placed before the queen. She was shocked to find the gift to be an earth baby, which Thistle-down had stolen, though with good intent, as the poor little thing was ill of starvation and sick. Gently the queen took the little baby and gave her over to the tender care of Nurse Doraloe, who would be better to it than its own parents. Then she reprimanded Thistle-down for this theft of an earth baby, even though he had meant it in kindness, for the royal edict was final that the fairies and pixies should have nothing whatever to do with the earth children.

As a punishment, Thistle-down was to be transformed to an earth child until such time as the earth babies were well cared for. In vain he pleaded, saying that that would mean that he would be banished forever. But the decree stood, only the queen graciously told him that he need not be forever, if the fairies and pixies, together with the grown-ups of the earth, would do all in their power to make all earth children well and happy. Whereupon Thistle-down made an earnest, heartfelt plea for such help from his sisters and brothers and the audience folk, and with a pretty grouping of all the characters, the playlette came to a close.

Elizabeth Richards was a most gracious and queenly queen and withal delightfully natural. The two tiny crown bearers, Betty Murphy and Margaret M. O'Meara, were as dear and cunning as only such very little folks can be. Marian Leighton, Olive Marsh, Gladys Armanen and Katherine Kelly were charming; Doraloe, the nurse, took her part excellently and was a typical hospital nurse. Helen Dwyer and Margery Davis, both pupils of Miss Delta Boice, were little bits of human poetry in their dancing. The fairies, Sancha Barmann, Virginia Martin, Helen Fitzgerald, Helen Clark, Josephine Ingalby, Margaret Healey, Frances Horton and Alice McLaughlin were as fairy-like as could be, while the pixies, Robert Hart, Clark Snyder, Harold J. Kennedy, Hasbrouck, Westbrook Stelle, Paul Nelson and Howard Keator, were as elf-like as one could wish. The queen's herald, "Bob" Mac Fadden, was a most imposing personage in suit of black velvet, silver lace and plume. Percy Jones as "Thistle-down," was one of the best performers of the playlette, while the three adventurers, Jerome Cashin, Harry Dietz and Fred Dressel, were excellent in their parts. The music for the dances of the fairies and pixies was furnished by a Columbia Grafonola in charge of Donald C. Taber. In the evening the entertainment, which greatly pleased all, was followed by dancing.

Tomorrow is the day when the babies to the education nurse, where they may be "inspired," if necessary prescribed food and where mothers may receive help from competent physicians and nurses free of charge.

Dewey's Factory to Close.

Frank D. Dewey, who has for some years been promoting a patent metal corner box, having a first class, well equipped plant located at 35-45 Bryn Avenue, this city, has consolidated his interest with a large western concern—D. M. Goodwill Co. of Chicago. He is now closing out his plant here, selling off property and equipment, preparatory to devoting his time to the Chicago business. The factory was a growing enterprise, employing as many as thirty-five men, but the fact that about all of its supplies were purchased in the south and west, and the major portion of its orders coming from the same quarter, necessitated his getting nearer the source of supply and demand.

HMX TO RUBE OLDING

Home Run in World's Series Brought Only Lot of Gloom.

Instead of Going Down Into History as Hit of Crucial Contest, It Was Recorded as Mere Incident—Vaudeville Offers Lacking.

Most players would look upon a home-run hit in a world-series contest as the most momentous occasion in their lives. To Oldring his four-bagger brought only a lot of gloom. It was in the fifth and what should have been the deciding game of the world series of 1911 that Oldring banged out his circuit drive. This hit should have clinched the series for the Athletics. The hit was made off Marquard. The game was played at the Polo grounds in New York. Oldring's home was then only a few miles from the Polo grounds, and there were a lot of his boyhood chums looking on.

In the third inning, with Lapp and Coombs on the bases, Oldring drove the ball into the left-field bleachers, making the score 3 to 0. Late in the game Coombs sustained the injury which laid him up for many months, but he persisted in remaining on the rubber. In the seventh inning New York scored a run, making the score 3 to 1. All during the game Oldring was delighted at the thought of that four-bagger and how he would have fun all winter with his New York friends.

Incidentally, Rube was dreaming of the offers he would get from vaudeville agents to go on the stage. Then came the ninth inning, and New York scored two runs and tied the count. That made Oldring's homeer fade considerably in importance.

In the tenth inning, with Plank pitching, the Giants landed another tally and won the game by 4 to 3.

Rube Oldring.

The injury to Coombs, the story that Larry Doyle had not actually touched the home plate in scoring in the tenth inning and the sensational manner in which the Giants had pulled the game out of the fire took away nearly all the glamor from Oldring's feat. Instead of a home run that would go down in baseball history with Frank Baker's two four-baggers in the same series, Rube's hit became a mere incident of the contest.

There were no offers from vaudeville agents for Oldring to go on the stage; his name was not blazoned across the pages of the newspapers as the hero of the final games of the series, and his picture did not decorate the front pages, while no squad of agents asked him to sign papers endorsing cigarettes, dyspepsia cures, chewing gum, soft drinks, etc.

DUNCAN HOLDS GOLF MARKS

Makes Three Remarkable Scores Over Swiss Course While Playing in Competition Game.

The question is asked frequently: "What is the world's record golf score?" It is quite impossible to answer this accurately, for most courses differ greatly, and for the most part very low scores are so short and so absurdly easy as to furnish no real test of the game.

A year or two since, George Duncan made a remarkable score over the course at Avenfels, Switzerland. It was in competition in the Lucerne lakes open tournament, 72 holes medal—36 at Lucerne and 36 at Avenfels. At Lucerne Duncan had 71 and 74, and at Avenfels 62 and 56. The scores of 58 for 18, 118 for 36 and 263 for 72 holes are world's records over recognizable courses. Avenfels is easy, but nevertheless Duncan's going was remarkable.

McGinnity's Hard Luck.

Ball players who think being a club owner is such a great graft should consider the case of Joe McGinnity. Joe went out to Tacoma with a roll estimated at $25,000. He bought the Tacoma franchise and in two years was broke. Now he is glad to get back on a salary.

For the Children

A Fortunate Little Boy and His New Playmate.

© by American Press Association.

On the right is a picture of a little boy who was once left on the steps of a cathedral by his real parents. Some kind people found him and carried him to a big house, where he was taken care of until a few weeks ago, when a rich lady adopted him and took him off to her beautiful home. This fortunate little boy's name is now Finley J. Shepard, Jr., and his playmate beside him is Louis Seaborn. Later, when Jack Frost froze all the lakes in Central park, where New York's children get their winter fun, these two boys liked very much to spend their afternoons watching the young skaters. The lad's adopted mother was Miss Helen Gould.

Nature Study.

Animals that hunt are not only "front eyed," but also have front nostrils, with noses especially fitted by their flat tips and the openings squarely in front, where they can be brought to bear upon the same spot of ground in concentrated attention in order to pick up a delicate trace which human nostrils could not perceive. A dog trots along, his nose close to the ground, and bends his course to the right or left as though tracing over some invisible chart by means of his power of scent. The dog is a natural meat eater and if not supported by man must be a hunter, so his nose is the most important part of his outfit, as it is of the other "front nostrils"—the wolf, tiger, lion, mink, weasel, etc.

But the hunted are the "side nostrils," eaters of vegetation, such as deer, rabbits, etc. These are keen scented, too, but their interest is less in knowing what animals passed before them than in detecting those that may be approaching, so their nostrils run around to the sides, where they can read the message of each passing breeze and be warned of coming danger.—Farm Journal.

Sword of Damocles.

Did you ever hear the story of the sword of Damocles? Damocles was never tired of saying how happy the rich and powerful should be. So one day, to show him just how happy they were, Dionysius, the tyrant of Syracuse, invited him to a wonderful banquet, with all the delicacies of the season spread before him in the most luxurious way. Damocles was happy to be thus treated like royalty and was about to eat the good things set before him when he happened to glance above his head and there discovered a sharp edged sword suspended by a single horse-hair. Of course he became immediately more interested in the sword than in the delicacies of the season and so learned that it is better to eat bread and herbs in peace than to sit at a king's board with a sword over one's head. But one does not have to be a king to have worries on account of riches, and it is not the worst thing in the world to be poor if one is happy.

The Black Bear.

Did you ever see a black bear with its hair different from the covering of other bears? He is said to be very fond of honey and loves to reach into the honeysuckle and take out the sweet. Sometimes he finds the wild bees' hiding place for their honey in a tree. He puts one arm around the tree and with the other reaches in and takes out the honey. The bees corner him all over, but their stings cannot get through his hair.

Popping Corn.

These cold days it is so nice to pop corn in the kitchen, and let me tell you a nice way to do it. Take a granite dipper and put a spoonful of lard in it and place it over the flame until melted. Then put your corn into it and hold it by the handle so that you can shake it. If you are careful you can pop it in a few minutes without burning. You can use butter, but the lard is best.

Bill's Mishap.

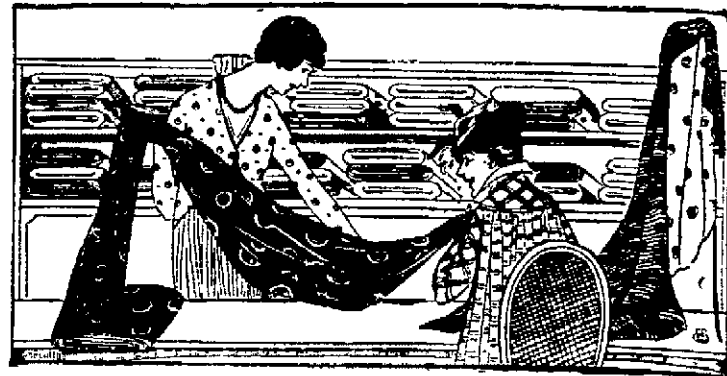

Our Jamie owned a brand new sled. He pulled it up the hill. Then who should snatch it from his hand? But selfish little Bill! He started down the hill kersplash and then he stopped kerpump. For Jamie's sled would none of him. And left him in the dump.

An Indian Word.

Probably no Indian word has attained a greater connotation of polite distinction than Tuxedo, derived from Plankteetogah, "the place of the bears," and conjoining, as it does, visions of collar advertisements, dinner-jacketed young men playing billiards and gayly clothed outdoor belles betting on blooded horses.

A Fellow Feeling.

There had been several little shortcomings in the petty cash, and at last the partners in a certain firm set a trap for the pilferer.

It succeeded. The culprit was the office boy. The junior partner was so incensed that he wanted to call in the police and give the lad in charge without further delay.

But the senior partner was a kind old man. He took a more humane view of the situation.

"No, no," he said gently. "Let us always remember that we began in a small way, too!"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Saffron as a Perfume.

It seems strange to us today to read of saffron as a perfume. But such it undoubtedly was almost universally, and the element of "romance" about it lies in the story told by Hakluyt of a pilgrim smuggling, at the risk of his life, from the Levant a head of saffron in a hollow made in his staff, from which grew the plantation which gave its name to Saffron Walden.—London Mail.

The Lion's Share.

"Taking the lion's share" is borrowed from Aesop. At the end of a joint hunt the animals wished to divide the booty. The lion claimed one-quarter of the spoils by right of prerogative, one for superior courage, one for his name and cubs, and, "as for the fourth, let him who will dare dispute with me."

AGREEMENT ON SUBMARINE QUESTION NEAR

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, March 8.—That an agreement will speedily be reached which will preserve all of the rights of United States under international law and at the same time end the so-called submarine controversy was broadly hinted in official quarters today. It was stated that Great Britain will, within the next few days, deliver to this government her promise that none of her vessels traversing the Atlantic will be armed. Only such vessels as traverse the Mediterranean will carry guns and they will be specifically pledged to use such armament only in defense.

At the same time Germany placed before the United States a detailed explanation of the reasons which constrained her to order armed merchantmen sunk without warning. This explanation reviewed the offers previously made by Germany to ratify the Declaration of London and again charged specifically that the "illegal" British blockade by which an effort is being made to starve Germany out, was entirely responsible for the use of the submarine against British vessels. While making no promise it was accepted in official circles that Germany would willingly refrain from using submarines against anything but warships if England would modify her blockade to follow the lines of the Declaration of London.

It is understood that the British offer not to arm any vessels in the Atlantic trade would have been presented before now but was withheld until after the president had won his fight for non-interference by Congress. Officials look for its receipt speedily and it was believed that it would be made the basis for a renewal on the part of the United States of its efforts to secure a modus vivendi between the warring nations for the "freedom of the seas" that would have an excellent chance of success. Until it actually is received, however, officials say they could not discuss it.

Get Salt From the Ocean.

Guam has no salt deposits unless the great Pacific ocean which surrounds it can be called such. All the salt consumed in the island is evaporated from sea water in kettles in the age-old fashion employed by the natives of all sea-coast countries and islands. When a "boiling" is in progress the natives take occasion to produce a quantity of sugar as well as salt, the sugar being derived from evaporating the sap from the coconut tree.

A Golden Wedding.

Pine Hill, March 8.—Not until a few hours previous did a few neighbors learn that Monday, March 6, was the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. R. Watson Hill, not in time to give due notice to their friends in Kingston and other places. Nevertheless they set to work to make secret preparations for its quiet celebration. Despite the blizzard of snow prevailing last night the parlors were filled by a company of friends, old and young. At nine o'clock a wedding march was played by one of the venerable bride and groom's daughters. Following this a congratulatory address was given by the Rev. N. B. Riemick of the Presbyterian Church in Kingston which he told the story of two golden weddings with which he was acquainted. The first was that of Dr. and Mrs. Miles Goodyear of Cortland, N. Y., in 1868, at which, among other distinguished persons, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Hoes of the First Reformed Church of Kingston were honored guests, also General Hathaway of Solon, and General Randall of Cortland, whose son, Henry S., became a secretary of state, and wrote a voluminous history of the state of New York. A poem composed in honor of Dr. Miles Goodyear's golden wedding was read and thus contributed to the anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hill. The other wedding, in which the speaker was a participant, was that of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Wilkinson of Troy, of which a feature was the presentation of fifty five-dollar gold pieces by the Masonic Lodge of which Mr. Wilkinson was a thirty-third degree member. Then the speaker added: "We have not sold pieces to offer you tonight, but we bring golden wishes, with a bouquet of fifty imperial roses from your children, and fifty carnations from this group of old friends now surrounding you." The bouquet of roses was laid in the lap of Mrs. Hill, and the carnations upon the arm of Mr. Hill. After these specific congratulations, the minister joined the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Hill together, and laying his hand upon them pronounced a beautiful benediction. George E. Rose, who had been married 49 years, added warm congratulations to his old friends and neighbors. This was followed by music, rendered by a band of young people and the remainder of the evening was spent in enjoying the dainty refreshments provided by children and grandchildren and happy social converse. This demonstration of affection on the part of their neighbors was a genuine surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Hill, and it is hoped it will be a pleasant memory to them for many years to come.

CHILDREN PLEAD FOR BABY'S CARE

The entertainment given by children of Kingston, on Tuesday afternoon and evening, at St. Mary's Hall, in the interest of Baby Week, proved to be a great success and attracted excellent audiences, both of children in the afternoon and adults in the evening. Both performances opened with excellent movies, pointing an important public health lesson. In the evening another series was shown, having to do especially with child welfare work.

But the real attraction was the pretty playlette, "The Theft of Thistle-down," given by a number of school children trained by T. H. Richards, assisted by Mrs. Vernon Hull and Mrs. A. Leighton. Between the movies and the playlette, Helen Clark gave a song and dance. Then the scenery was changed and the audience was transported to cloudland, for the program stated, "Scene—Above the Clouds." A throne of great white clouds was seen, surrounded with more of the fleecy white clouds, when a group of white-robed fairies with star-dust trimmings on their robes, entered and gave a dainty dance, during which the amusing pixies came on the scene, and joined in the dance. Then, entering, an imposing herald, who blew his trumpet and announced the approach of the queen. The fairies and pixies quickly made room for the queen, who preceded by two mites of crown bearers—just living pictures of "Baby Week," and was escorted to her throne. The wee crown bearers were seated on her right and left, with her attendants, in rainbow hued gowns were artistically grouped about her on the steps of the throne. The queen, her attendants and subjects as well as the audience were then treated to an exhibition of exquisite aesthetic dancing, Helen Dwyer first giving a solo dance. This was followed by a pretty dance by Margery Richards and Robert Hart, and finally Margery Richards gave another lovely aesthetic dance.

Then, with pomp and ceremony, the queen was crowned and called for her adventures, three, who appeared in answer to the trumpet call of the herald. They were relating their adventures when "Thistle-down," one of the pixies, staggered in carrying a basket almost as big as himself, which he breathlessly placed before the queen. She was shocked to find the gift to be an earth baby which Thistle-down had stolen, though with good intent, as the poor little thing was a if starved and sick. Gently the queen took the little baby and gave her over to the tender care of Nurse Dorolosa, who would be better to it than its own parents. Then she reprimanded Thistle-down for this theft of an earth baby, even though he had meant it in kindness, for the royal edict was final that the fairies and pixies could have nothing whatever to do with the earth children.

As a punishment, Thistle-down was to be transformed to an earth child until such time as the earth babies were well cared for. In vain he pleaded, saying that that would mean that he would be banished forever. But the decree stood, only the queen graciously told him that it need not be forever if the fairies and pixies, together with the grown-ups of the earth, would do all in their power to make all earth children well and happy. Whereupon Thistle-down made an earnest, heartfelt plea for such help from his sisters and brothers and the audience folk, and with a pretty grouping of all the characters, the playlette came to a close.

Elizabeth Richards was a most gracious and queenly queen and withal delightfully natural. The two tiny crown bearers, Betty Murphy and Margaret M. O'Meara, were as dear and cunning as only such very little folks can be. Marian Leighton, Olive March, Gladys Armanen and Katherine Kelly were charming; Dorolosa, the nurse, took her part excellently and was a typical hospital nurse. Helen Dwyer and Margery Davis, both pupils of Miss Delta Boileau, were little bits of human poetry in their dancing. The fairies, Sancha Barnmann, Virginia Martin, Helen Fitzgerald, Helen Clark, Josephine Ingalby, Margaret Healey, Frances Horton and Alice McLaughlin were as fairy-like as could be, while the pixies, Robert Hart, Clark Snyder, Harold J. S. Kenneth Hasbrouck, Westbrook Stelle, Paul Nelson and Howard Cole, were as elf-like as one could wish. The queen's herald, "Bob" Mac Fadden, was a most imposing personage in suit of black velvet, silver lace and plume. Percy Jones as "Thistle-down," was one of the best performers of the playlette, while the three adventures, Jerome Cashion, Harry Dietz and Fred Dresel, were excellent in their parts. The music and the dances of the fairies and pixies was furnished by a Columbia Gramofola in charge of Donald C. Taber. In the evening the entertainment, which greatly pleased all, was followed by dancing.

Tomorrow is the day when the babies to the federation house, where they may be "inspected," if necessary prescribed for, and where mothers may receive help from competent physicians and nurses free of charge.

Dewey's Factory to Close.

Frank D. Dewey, who has for some years been promoting a patent metal corner box, having a first class, well equipped plant located at 35-37 Bruyn avenue, this city, has consolidated his interest with a large western concern—D. M. Goodville Co., of Chicago. He is now closing out his plant here, selling off property and equipment, preparatory to devoting his time to the Chicago business. The factory was a growing enterprise, employing as many as thirty-five men, but the fact, that about all of its supplies were purchased in the south and west, and the major portion of its orders coming from the same quarter, necessitated his getting nearer the source of supply and demand.

HMX TO RUBE OLDING

Home Run in World's Series Brought Only Lot of Gloom.

Instead of Going Down Into History as Hit of Crucial Contest, It Was Recorded as Mere Incident—Vaudeville Offers Lacking.

Most players would look upon a home-run hit in a world-series contest as the most momentous occasion in their lives. To Oldring his four-bagger brought only a lot of gloom.

It was in the fifth and what should have been the deciding game of the world series of 1911 that Oldring banged out his circuit drive. This hit should have clinched the series for the Athletics. The hit was made off Marquard. The game was played at the Polo grounds in New York. Oldring's home was then only a few miles from the Polo grounds, and there were a lot of his boyhood chums looking on.

In the third inning, with Lapp and Coombs on the bases, Oldring drove the ball into the left-field bleachers, making the score 3 to 0. Late in the game Coombs sustained the injury which laid him up for many months, but he persisted in remaining on the rubber. In the seventh inning New York scored a run, making the score 3 to 1. All during the game Oldring was delighted at the thought of that four-bagger and how he would have fun all winter with his New York friends.

Incidentally, Rube was dreaming of the offers he would get from vaudeville agents to go on the stage. Then came the ninth inning, and New York scored two runs and tied the count. That made Oldring's home fade considerably in importance.

In the tenth inning, with Plank pitching, the Giants landed another tally and won the game by 4 to 3.

Rube Oldring.

The injury to Coombs, the story that Larry Doyle had not actually touched the home plate in scoring in the tenth inning and the sensational manner in which the Giants had pulled the game out of the fire took away nearly all the glamor from Oldring's feat. Instead of a home run that would go down in baseball history with Frank Baker's two four-baggers in the same series, Rube's hit became a mere incident of the contest.

There were no offers from vaudeville agents for Oldring to go on the stage; his name was not blazoned across the pages of the newspapers as the hero of the final games of the series, and his picture did not decorate the front pages, while no squad of agents asked him to sign papers endorsing cigarettes, dyspepsia cures, chewing gum, soft drinks, etc.

DUNCAN HOLDS GOLF MARKS

Makes Three Remarkable Scores Over Swiss Course While Playing in Competition Game.

The question is asked frequently: "What is the world's record golf score?" It is quite impossible to answer this accurately, for most courses differ greatly, and for the most part very low courses are so short and so absurdly easy as to furnish no real test of the game.

A year or two since, George Duncan made a remarkable score over the course at Axenfeld, Switzerland. It was in competition in the Lucerne lakes open tournament, 72 holes medal—36 at Lucerne and 36 at Axenfeld. At Lucerne Duncan had 71 and 74, and at Axenfeld 62 and 56. The scores of 56 for 18, 118 for 36 and 263 for 72 holes are world's records over recognizable courses. Axenfeld is easy, but nevertheless Duncan's going was remarkable.

McGinnity's Hard Luck.

Ball players who think being a club owner is such a great graft should consider the case of Joe McGinnity. Joe went out to Tacoma with a roll estimated at $25,000. He bought the Tacoma franchise and in two years was broke. Now he is glad to get back on a salary.

Pitchers Lajole Fears.

Napoleon Lajole says that the pitchers that proved hardest for him during his American league career, were, in the order named: Walter Johnson, Rube Waddell, "Chief" Bender, Eddie Plank, Ed Walsh and Ray Caldwell.

For the Children

A Fortunate Little Boy and His New Playmate.

© by American Press Association.

On the right is a picture of a little boy who was once left on the steps of a cathedral by his real parents. Some kind people found him and carried him to a big house, where he was taken care of until a few weeks ago, when a rich lady adopted him and took him off to her beautiful home. This fortunate little boy's name is now Finley J. Sheppard, Jr., and his playmate beside him is Louis Seaborn. Later, when Jack Frost froze all the lakes in Central park, where New York's children get their winter fun, these two boys liked very much to spend their afternoons watching the young skaters. The lad's adopted mother was Miss Helen Gould.

Nature Study.

Animals that hunt are not only "front eyed," but also have front nostrils, with noses especially fitted by their flat tips and the openings squarely in front, where they can be brought to bear upon the same spot of ground in concentrated attention in order to pick up a delicate trace which human nostrils could not perceive. A dog trots along, his nose close to the ground, and bends his course to the right or left as though tracing over some invisible chart by means of his power of scent. The dog is a natural meat eater and if not supported by man must be a hunter, so his nose is the most important part of his outfit, as it is of the other "front nostrils"—the wolf, tiger, lion, mink, weasel, etc.

But the hunted are the "side nostrils," eaters of vegetation, such as deer, rabbits, etc. These are keen scented, too, but their interest is less in knowing what animals passed before them than in detecting those that may be approaching, so their nostrils run around to the sides, where they can read the message of each passing breeze and be warned of coming danger.—Farm Journal.

Sword of Damocles.

Did you ever hear the story of the sword of Damocles? Damocles was never tired of saying how happy the rich and powerful should be. So one day, to show him just how happy they were, Dionysius, the tyrant of Syracuse, invited him to a wonderful banquet, with all the delicacies of the season spread before him in the most luxurious way. Damocles was happy to be thus treated like royalty and was about to eat the good things set before him when he happened to glance above his head and there discovered a sharp edged sword suspended by a single horsehair. Of course he became immediately more interested in the sword than in the delicacies of the season and so learned that it is better to eat bread and herbs in peace than to sit at a king's board with a sword over one's head. But one does not have to be a king to have worries on account of riches, and it is not the worst thing in the world to be poor if one is happy.

The Black Bear.

Did you ever see a black bear with its hair different from the covering of other bears? He is said to be very fond of honey and loves to reach into the honeycomb and take out the sweet. Sometimes he finds the wild bees' hiding place for their honey in a tree. He puts one arm around the tree and with the other reaches in and takes out the honey. The bees cover him all over, but their stings cannot get through his hair.

Popping Corn.

These cold days it is so nice to pop corn in the kitchen, and let me tell you a nice way to do it. Take a granite dipper and put a spoonful of lard in it and place it over the flame until melted. Then put your corn into it and hold it by the handle so that you can shake it. If you are careful you can pop it in a few minutes without burning. You can use butter, but the lard is best.

Bill's Mishap.

Our Jamie owned a brand new sled. He pulled it up the hill. Then when he should have been down the hill he started down the hill kerplop! And then he stopped kerplop! For Jamie's sled would none of him, and left him in the dump.

A Fellow Feeling.

There had been several little short-ages in the petty cash, and at last the partners in a certain firm set a trap for the pilferer.

It succeeded. The culprit was the office boy. The junior partner was so incensed that he wanted to call in the police and give the lad in charge without further delay.

But the senior partner was a kind old man. He took a more humane view of the situation.

"No, no," he said gently. "Let us always remember that we began in a small way too."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, March 8.—There is as much difference between an American and National League meeting as between prayer services and a circus parade; as great a contrast as between the Sahara desert and Alaska.

When the National Leaguers get together they do so with a whoop and a hurrah. When the American Leaguers meet they are so quiet about it that one wonders whom they are burying.

The Nationals stage a meeting filled with color and life and noise; one in which there is more action than in a five reel "movie" thriller. One or another of these National magnates says or does something nearly every hour that is worth from a paragraph to a column of space.

American Meetings Colorless.

But the American League meetings—how different are they! Rarely do they last more than one day—and always are they lifeless in comparison with the National convalescence. The Americans meet to transact business—not to frolic. And the only source of news is Ban Johnson. He says all that is to be said. The magnates, as far as vital league matters are concerned, are dumb.

But the opposite is the custom in the National League. Every magnate and every other official in that circuit must be "covered" because each is likely to "burst" a story at any moment. The National Leaguers are not muffled. They don't permit the president of the league to be their mouthpiece. Not they! What are tongues for if you can't use 'em?

The National Leaguers fight out their battles in the corridors of the hotel or in the meeting room. Many warm sessions have characterized the meetings of the none too distant past. Oftentimes the boys have gone into the meeting room with little howlers—and they've exploded them, too.

Ban's System.

And, as a result, several free-for-all battles have ensued. But there are no battles within the American League meeting rooms. All is harmony. Why? Simply because Ban Johnson has a little system that effectively kills all chances for battling.

As soon as Ban arrives for a meeting, he summons—one at a time—each of the magnates. If anyone has a grievance, he tells it to Ban—and Ban fixes it up—outside of the meeting. If two magnates are gunning for each other, Ban sets them together—and makes them smoke the pipe of peace.

If any reforms are suggested and Ban favors them, he lines up his lieutenants, tells them so, gets their promise to vote for those measures—and they go through in a hurry.

Everything Settled Beforehand.

If Ban disapproves some resolution he tries to talk the magnates out of introducing it before the regular meeting convenes. Usually he succeeds. When he fails, he lines up enough to kill it—speedily.

So when the American League magnates go into executive session, everyone knows just what he is to do—and what not to do. And the routine business is completed with lightning-like rapidity. The American Leaguers hop into town, see Ban, go into session and hop out again—usually all on the same day.

How Nationals Do It.

But the National Leaguers frequently arrive a day before—and the bartending staff at the Waldorf is increased at once. The Moguls whizz up and down the lobbies and in and out of the bar room exuding words—and words—and more words.

The next day they meet—usually from one to four hours after the appointed time. Then they recess until the next day—and the popping of the corks is resumed. All through the afternoon and the bulk of the night they say or do something—and the serving of refreshments continues. The more refreshed they become the more those magnates talk. And some of them get considerably refreshed.

The next day they meet again—hours after the scheduled time. They pow-wow for a time, adjourn and then shoot up and down the lobbies again, all life, hustle and bustle—and all noise. They tell you about trades they plan to make—about players they intend to buy or sell; or reforms they are going to make in the grand old game.

And how they make the sport writer hump along! He's got to "cover" each of them—and it's quite a job. He may decide to cover only six of the magnates—and the other two will "break" the big stories of the meeting. An American League meeting merely is a matter of seeking out Ban Johnson when the affair is over; covering a National League meeting is—well, something else.

$10,000 CLAIM SETTLED FOR $125

The settlement of Harry D. Ferguson's $10,000 damage claim against the city, which was pending in supreme court, for $125, was the most important business transacted at the regular meeting of the common council held on Tuesday evening at the city hall. Ferguson was injured while riding a bicycle on Hone street in July of 1909, when the machine struck a manhole in the street. He was represented by Frank W. Brooks.

The meeting was brief and was called to order by Alderman-at-Large Walter P. Crane with Aldermen Smith, McKittick, Schick, Leverich, Parish, Fischer, Kullman, Shultis, Brown, Hull and Purvis present. The absentees were Aldermen Marquardt and Connelly.

Wants Court Room Renovated.

City Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., in a communication asked that the court room of the city court be renovated and repaired. He said that he would like to meet with the building committee when they examined the court room and show them what was needed.

The communication was referred to the building committee. Alderman Schick offered a resolution which was carried, to the effect that when the building committee inspect the city court room and other rooms which wanted to be renovated and repairs are needed to the entire building and ascertain the cost and report back to the common council as soon as possible.

Wants Pest Hospital Sold.

Mayor Canfield sent in a communication regarding the contagion hospital on Albert street and suggested that the matter of selling the property be referred to a committee to visit the hospital and then to report back to the common council.

This matter was taken up last November and it was stated that the committee to whom the matter had been referred had met at the city hall preparatory to visiting the hospital but the weather had been so inclement that they had not done so.

The communication from the mayor was referred to a committee to report back to the council.

A Tax Refund.

A petition from the Ulster & Delaware railroad asking a refund on taxes assessed on account of the Washington avenue viaduct was read and on motion of Alderman Schick the city treasurer will refund the railroad the sum of $363.18.

The railroad was assessed $11,850 valuation on the viaduct structure but a court order was obtained reducing the assessment on the railroad's special franchise to its original sum of $1,105, the court holding that the viaduct was not railroad property and that it could not be assessed for it.

Bills and Claims.

Bills and claims against the city were read and referred to the auditing committee who later reported a number of bills audited which were ordered paid. In a supplementary report the committee recommended that the claim of Harry D. Ferguson be settled for the sum mentioned. The committee reported that they had acted on the suggestion of Howard Chipp, who represented Corporation Counsel Brinnier, who is out of the city. The report was adopted.

Wants Arc Light.

Alderman Purvis offered a resolution that an arc light be needed near the old septic tank on Wilbur avenue and that the board of public works order same installed.

The resolution was referred to that board. The council then adjourned.

Damage Suit Reported Settled.

It is reported that the suit of Arthur Merritt against the New Palitz Traction Company, which has been in the courts for the past two years, has been settled. Mr. Merritt received $1,200. Mr. Merritt, it was alleged, was forcibly ejected from the car by one of the conductors who claims Merritt had not paid his fare when Merritt claimed he had paid it.

WHY DRY GOODS PRICES WILL ADVANCE

The financial editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, in a review of the textile trades market, gives timely hints to the dry goods trade and their customers, urging a "Buy Early" campaign. The article in full is as follows:

A seller's market rules throughout the textile trades. Normally the buyer has the whip hand. Now the buyer pleads for goods and haggles neither over price nor delivery.

Hotels in textile centers are crowded. Buyers from the cutter-up down to the retailer have come to look over the ground in person. New York, Philadelphia and Cleveland. Hotels are filled with them, and the old thing is that salesmen back from the road have done a larger than normal business themselves. The buyer has taken his quota from the traveling man and has come to the "house" to see about deliveries and make additional purchases.

The woman's garment that used to retail at $25 will range this year between $28.50 and $29.50 and there will be like advances on practically all wearables. Color trouble will not be pronounced this spring, for the great bulk of the garments to be worn the next few months were made from German dyestuffs; what croaking eventuates will come later.

The reasons for the abnormality of the current textile trades are manifold—war uniforms and blankets are taking the world's wool, and wool so used does not get back to commerce. The uniform and camp blanket undergo wear to which civilian use cannot be compared, and those which remain are burned. Furthermore we are exporting cloths on a scale new to this country. South America and Australia are taking goods they never took before. Add to the dye, wool and cloth-export abnormalities railroad embargoes, scarcity of ocean vessels and labor demands. Metal products plants have actually been competing with textile plants for labor. That is not the case in Cleveland, but in New England towns the munition mills have drawn employees from the cotton mills, and have thus afforded their contribution to the general up-side down situation in the cloth and garment industries.

Many a garment house which last year took at face value the word of the cloth maker concerning prospective shortages and the advantage of buying for delivery far into the future now has an excellent investment. A year ago the National Cloak, Suit, and Skirt Manufacturers' Association to which practically all Cleveland garment houses, other than knit goods houses, belong, conducted a "Buy Early" campaign. The troubles that have since become serious were less so then. "Buy Early" is still the slogan, but the buyer is now its most vociferous advocate.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, March 8.—There is as much difference between an American and National League meeting as between prayer services and a circus parade; as great a contrast as between the Sahara desert and Alaska.

When the National Leaguers get together they do so with a whoop and a hurrah. When the American Leaguers meet they are so quiet about it that one wonders whom they are burying.

The Nationals stage a meeting filled with color and life and noise; one in which there is more action than in a five reel "movie" thriller. One or another of those National magnates says or does something nearly every hour that is worth from a paragraph to a column of space.

American Meetings Colorless.

But the American League meetings—how different are they! Rarely do they last more than one day—and always are they lifeless in comparison with the National conclave. The Americans meet to transact business—not to frivo. And the only source of news is Ban Johnson. He says all that is to be said. The magnates, as far as vital league matters are concerned, are dumb.

But the opposite is the custom in the National League. Every magnate and every other official in that circuit must be "covered" because each is likely to "burst" a story at any moment. The National Leaguers are not muffled. They don't permit the president of the league to be their mouthpiece. Not they! What are tongues for if you can't use 'em?

The National Leaguers fight out their battles in the corridors of the hotel or in the meeting room. Many warm sessions have characterized the meetings of the none too distant past. Oftentimes the boys have gone into the meeting room with little howlers—and they've exploded them, too.

Ban's System.

And, as a result, several free-for-all battles have ensued. But there are no battles within the American League meeting rooms. All is harmony. Why? Simply because Ban Johnson has a little system that effectively kills all chances for battling.

As soon as Ban arrives for a meeting, he summons—one at a time—each of the magnates. If anyone has a grievance, he tells it to Ban—and Ban fixes it up—outside of the meeting. If two magnates are gunning for each other, Ban gets them together—and makes them smoke the pipe of peace.

If any reforms are suggested and Ban favors them, he lines up his lieutenants, tells them so, gets their promise to vote for those measures—and they go through in a hurry.

Everything Settled Beforehand.

If Ban disapproves some resolution he tries to talk the magnates out of introducing it before the regular meeting convenes. Usually he succeeds. When he fails, he lines up enough to kill it—speedily.

So when the American League magnates go into executive session, everyone knows just what he is to do—and what not to do. And the routine business is completed with lightning-like rapidity.

The American Leaguers hop into town, see Ban, go into session and hop out again—usually all on the same day.

How Nationals Do It.

But the National Leaguers frequently arrive a day before—and the bartending staff at the Waldorf is increased at once. The Moguls whizz up and down the lobbies and in and out of the bar room exuding words—and words—and more words.

All through the afternoon and the bulk of the night they say or do something—and the serving of refreshments continues. The more refreshed they become the more those magnates talk. And how they make the sport writer hump along! He's got to "cover" each of them—and it's quite a job. He may decide to cover only six of the magnates—and the other two will "break" the big stories of the meeting.

"Covering" an American League meeting merely is a matter of seeking out Ban Johnson when the affair is over; covering a National League meeting is—well, something else.

win smokers because they find the blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos so refreshing; because they appreciate the absence of tongue-bite, throat-parch and any unpleasant cigaretty after-taste!

You'll prefer this Camel blend flavor to either kind of tobacco smoked straight. And the quality is so apparent men do not look for or expect coupons or premiums!

Once you know the delightful mellow-mild-smoothness of Camels—and how liberally you can smoke them without a comeback—you'll choose them against any cigarette at any price!

The stamp placed over and seals the package, which keeps out air, thereby preserving the quality of the blended tobaccos. By inserting the fingers as illustrated, the stamp easily breaks without tearing the tin foil, which folds back into its place.

Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages, 20 for 10c; or ten packages (200 cigarettes) in a glassine-paper-covered carton for $1.00. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.
